CONTROLS SET UP ON WAGES AND SALARIES

OFFICES ORGANIZED FOR INFORMATION OF EMPLOYERS

Washington, Oct. 28 (AP)—Four government agencies acted swiftly today to set up nation-wide wage and salary controls in accordance with a sweeping order limiting net salaries to $25,000 and banning all pay raises or decreases not in accordance with regulations.

Treasury officials went into hurried conferences on the task assigned them by James F. Byrnes, economic stabilization director, and indicated they would announce tomorrow how they would go about limiting salaries to a net salaries to $25,000 and bantions of federal income taxes, customary charitable contributions, life insurance premiums and fixed obligations. The treasury also will control payments to lower-salaried executive and professional personnel.

Heavy Fines Provided

The war labor board, handed the job of stabilizing all wages and most salaries up to $5,000, said it would have a far-flung system of information centers in operation in 10 to 15 days so that employers may know whether any pay raises or cuts they propose to make can safely be made without prior approval of the government. (Fines up to $1,000 and imprisonment up to one year are possible penalties for infraction of the pay regulations. In addition, government agencies will rule out any outlawed wage payment when they come to figuring an employer's income tax liabilities, his costs in working on government contracts, or price ceilings on his products.)

The plan for processing thousands of inquiries and applications every day calls for extensive coordination between WLB and existing regional offices of the wage-hour administration and with the U. S. conciliation service. Wage-hour field offices will have the job of answering inquiries from employers and employes and of helping prepare applications for wage and salary increases.

Exemptions Specified

When the machinery is functioning, the employers will be able to learn from their nearest wage-hour office whether they are exempt, that is, whether they may give an individual or blanket wage or salary increase without applying to the board for approval. Certain exemptions have been set up, such as the employer of eight or less workers, provided price ceilings are not affected.

Other exemptions are "individual promotions or reclassifications, individual merit increases within established salary rate ranges, operation of an established plan of salary increases based on length of service, increased productivity under incentive plans, and operation of a trainee system or such other reasons or circumstances as may be prescribed.

Pass On Disputes

"When the employer wants to know whether his own specific cases fall within these exemptions, he can get the answer from the wage-hour office. If it is determined that a wage or salary increase would be illegal without approval, the wage-hour office will help in the preparation of an application which goes to one of the war labor board's regional offices. The board will open ten such offices within the next two or three weeks, located at Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Atlanta, Chicago, Cleveland, Kansas City, San Francisco, Denver and Dallas.

The regional director in most cases may be able to pass upon the application without substantial de-

FUN TAKEN OUT OF HALLOWE'EN

Old Tricks Unpatriotic This Year, They Help Only Hitler

BY KENNETH L. DIXON

Washington, Oct. 28. (AP)—The best way to help the enemy, children, is to go out and celebrate Hallowe'en as usual this Saturday night.

With those gentle words, Uncle Sam sorrowly warned his juvenile nieces and nephews today that about the only way they could hobnob with the hobgoblins on the coming All Hallow's Eve was to stay at home and make faces at each other.

In Washington, they won't even be able to don masks and wander abroad this year. Dragging an old law out of the mothballs of Ku-Klux-Klan days, the police department warned that masked individuals will be suspected as saboteurs and dealt with as such—boom, boom!

At the same time, high government officials who, for reasons possibly involving votes of 1955, or thereabouts preferred not to be quoted by name, asked the country's children to remember that the old gag of letting air out of tires is nothing short of sabotage itself, this year.

Furthermore, they pointed out, ringing doorbells will ruin the sleep of many a war worker and thus slow down the flow of munitions to the fighting men.

Waking someone in the wee, sma' hours with a telephone call is no longer funny when the wires already are jammed with war messages.

Soaping windows is using up a war-vital material, since soap's ingredients also go into high explosives. (Of course, this can be used as anti-bath propaganda, boys.)

Grabbing gates also is bad business, since if they can be dispensed with they should be in the scrap pile, and if not someone is going to lose plenty of war-vital hours hunting them.

And if you think not being able to upset those little buildings behind big buildings this year is going to hurt your morale, boys, just remember that what it does to the neighborhood's morale when you do kick them over is not to be sniffed at!

Dundee Boy Killed In Fall On Truck

Dundee, Mich., Oct. 28 (AP)—Awault Hill, 12-year-old farm lad, was fatally injured today in a fall from the running board of a truck driven by his father, John Hill.

Hill said the boy had been riding on a friend's combine, waved excitedly at him as the truck approached and sought to jump aboard the moving vehicle but struck his head against the truck's cab and fell to the pavement, fracturing his skull. He died in a nearby farmhouse before medical aid could be obtained.

INDICTED FOR MURDER

Elkhart, Ind., Oct. 28 (AP)—The Elkhart county grand jury today returned a first degree murder indictment against Robert McClintic, 21, of Brooklyn, N. Y., charged with the holdup-shooting of John Nelson, 59, Elkhart grocer, on Oct. 14. McClintic was listed as being absent without official leave from the United States navy. His wife lives at Kalamazoo, Mich.

REDS REPORT GROUND LOST IN STALINGRAD

GAINS MADE NORTH OF CITY AND IN CAUCASUS

BY HENRY C. CASSIDY

Moscow, Thursday, Oct. 29, (AP)—The Russians today acknowledged their second withdrawal in the battle-torn city of Stalingrad in 24 hours, but reported that the Red army had made gains northwest of Stalingrad and on the Black sea front of the west Caucasus.

The midnight Soviet communique said the Germans had advanced about 200 yards at one point in the factory district of North Stalingrad after gaining about two blocks during the previous night by throwing in huge masses of men, tanks and planes.

Counter-Blows Score

At another point, the communique said, a company of motorized infantry broke through Soviet lines to the southwest outskirts of one factory, but was completely wiped out.

The intensity of the fighting in Stalingrad was indicated by Russian claims that Soviet artillery and mortar fire and air attacks had destroyed 12 companies of German infantry (more than 2,000 men), 30 tanks, 90 trucks and 18 artillery batteries.

Moscow radio reported that the Red army's relief attack northwest of Stalingrad had resulted in further Russian gains after fierce hand-to-hand fighting which cost the Germans 1,200 dead.

The communique, referring to fighting in this sector, said the Germans had launched eight counterattacks against one height, but that all the attacks were repelled and the Russians launched counterblows killing more than 500 enemy troops.

Positions Reversed

Soviet dispatches from the Black sea area reported a dramatic reversal of the military position in which the Nazis were rolled back from Tuapse in heavy mountain combat.

The communique said the Germans had thrown reserves into this sector and had tried to take a height held by the Red army. The Russians, however, fought until the Germans were exhausted and then counterattacked, killing about 200 Germans.

Farther west in the Caucasus, the German drive toward the Grozny oil fields took a new turn by developing southward of the former spearhead in an attempt to reach the military road curving down from Prokhladnenski through Ordzhonididze to Grozny.

This was indicated by a reference in the communique, for the first time, to fighting around Nalchick, which is about 50 miles southwest of the Mozdok area where the main battle on this front has been taking place.

Defense Cramped

The communique said the Germans had launched an offensive in the Nalchik sector and at one point had succeeded in pushing the Russians back slightly, at the cost of heavy losses. Six German

NAZIS DEMAND MORE VESSELS

All Merchantmen Now In French Harbors Go to Germany

New York, Oct. 28 (AP)—The Germans in another of a series of ever-heavier levies upon Vichy have demanded that the French government turn over to the reich navy all merchantmen now in French harbors without regard to their nationality, a reliable European source informed the Associated Press today.

This source, who vouched that his information came from good authority in Vichy, said about 300,000 tons of shipping were involved, including Norwegian, Dutch and other merchantmen which sought shelter in French ports or were there at the time of the 1940 armistice.

The transfer, however, was not believed to have been arranged thus far.

The demand for the ships still in harbors controlled by Vichy was said to have been made first about four months ago.

The Laval government, it was said, first refused flatly and then agreed to a transfer which, however still is being held up.

The Nazis upon their conquest of France ceized the greater part of merchantmen, including French boats, in occupied ports.

Train Strikes Detroit Bus; Sixteen Dead

Detroit, Oct. 28 (AP)—Sixteen persons were killed and more than a score injured, several critically, today when a Detroit Street Railways motorbus, jammed to its doors with school children, office workers and factory employes, was ripped in two by a passenger train.

The bus halted at the Caniff avenue crossing of the Grand Trunk Western railroad to permit a northbound freight train to pass, then moved directly into the path of a southbound passenger train.

The locomitive of the Chicago-Detroit train sliced through the rear end of the bus, hurled the front end to one side, scattered bodies along the right of way for two blocks and ground to a stop a quarter mile away with the bodies of six youths mangled against the front of its boiler.

Driver Is Held

Suburban Hamtramck police took into custody for questioning the bus driver, William F. Clos, 25, who has been a regular motor coach operator for two years.

Fred A. Nolan, general manager of the municipally owned DSR transportation system, said the accident was the worst in the system's history. Mayor Edward J. Jeffries ordered a complete investigation.

Marie Giles, 21, a passenger seated directly behind the bus driver, told how standing riders obscured his vision.

"There was a car ahead of the bus," she said. "When the freight train cleared, this car started across. The bus driver asked the people jammed against the front door if everything was clear. He could not see for himself; the bus was too crowded. The people said 'all clear' and he started across.

"All of a sudden I saw the train coming. Then there was a nightmare. I don't know how I got out alive."

Watchman Yells

A graphic picture of the scene was given by Joseph Levinsky, watchman in a railroad tower at the intersection.

"The bus was westbound and had stopped for the red flasher signals," he said. "The freight, northbound, cleared the crossing.

"The red flasher lights were still working. The passenger train was coming fast, southbound, with the engine whistle screaming. I saw this bus start up. I knew it would do no good, but I leaned out of the tower and yelled. I yelled my head off. The bus went right in the path of the train, and there was an awful splintering crash, and then screams."

Some bodies were decapitated; limbs were severed from others;

ALLIES GAINING IN NEW GUINEA

Bombers Hit Nipponese Warship; Fires Seen At Buka Base

Gen. MacArthur's Headquarters, Australia, Thursday Oct. 29 (AP)—Allied bombers winging far north of hotly-contested Guadalcanal in the Solomons hit a Japanese warship and another vessel at Rabaul, New Britain, and started fires visible for 80 miles at Buka, another enemy base, a communique said today.

Allied headquarters also announced that Australian ground troops striking across the Owen Stanley mountains in New Guinea had "forced the enemy northward along the main trail to positions in the vicinity of Alola," that that stubborn fighting against isolated Japanese detachments and strong points was continuing. Thus the Allied troops were within eight miles of Kokoda, mid-way point across the waist of the island.

The night aerial attacks at Rabaul and Buka were "in continuous support of the general Solomons situation," and "all our planes returned," the communique said.

Rabaul, more than 600 miles northwest of U. S. marine positions on Guadalcanal, was hit by heavy Allied bombers that swept in low despite an intense anti-aircraft barrage. "Complete results were not observed, but at least two enemy ships were hit, an explosion being observed on an enemy warship and another vessel being set on fire."

Medium bombers struck the airdrome and building areas at Buka, which is at the northern tip of the Solomons and less than 500 miles from Guadalcanal. One Japanese bomber was destroyer on the ground in addition to the extensive fires set.

One medium unit on reconnaissance also strafed the Japanese airdrome at Gasmata, New Britain, "with unobserved results," the communique said.

BRITISH WIDEN GREAT GAP IN ROMMEL LINE

AXIS DESERT ARMY LOSSES HEAVY IN TANKS AND MEN

BY DON WHITEHEAD

Cairo, Oct. 28, (AP)—The advance tank force of Britain's Eighth army has won the first round with Field Marshal Rommel's armor in battles through the Alamein minefield gaps, and dispatches from the desert front said today that the British onslaught was steadily widening the way for the major test of rival steel and gunpower.

Over the shell-pocked battleground and the bomb-pitted ports of Rommel's supply lines the allied airforce kept German and Italian planes on the defensive.

U. S. Airmen Active

United States fighters reported their biggest day of the campaign, downing seven planes out of yesterday's allied bag of 18. Three of them were shot down by Lieut. Lyman Middleditch, Highlands, N. J., fighter pilot in the Black Scorpion squadron. Total allied losses were six planes.

The British Middle East command announced that further progress had been made Monday in night fighting.

Dispatches from the front indicated that axis losses already had been heavy, both in tanks and men. There was no authoritative estimate, however, on the number of Rommel's tanks put out of action in the first five days of the fight, but it was clear that by far his main armored power was poised back of the battlefront.

Barrage Blasts Alamein

Groups of prisoners trailed back over the British supply lines told of the terrific barrage of the El Alamein line has been under day and night since the start of the offensive as British artillery blasted a way through the minefields and barbed wire for infantry of the army of the Nile.

(German and Italian communiques said the British attack was pressed hardest on the north or seaward flank of the battle line. The Germans said they were putting up "heavy but successful defensive fighting."

(The exact extent of the Eighth army's penetrations of the axis defense system have not been defined, but a Reuters dispatch to London from a correspondent at the front was datelined "west of the El Alamein line," indicating that the British were fanning out behind Rommel's first defenses.)

Even before joining in the action, Rommel's main tank forces were under attack at their gathering points back of the line by British and United States bombers and fighter-bombers who swept the front and ranged to the port of Matruh.

PIPELINE HELPS SPEED WAR OIL

World's Longest Fuel Link To Be Ready By Next June

Washington, Oct. 28, (AP)—At the rate of 300,000 barrels a day, oil to lubricate the allied war machine and take some of the squeaks out of eastern transportation troubles will start flowing out of swelling southwestern stores through the world's largest pipeline next June 1, federal officials announced today.

First link of the underground lubrication line—a 530-mile leg from Longview, Texas, to Norris City, Ill.—will be completed this December, and for the next five months the oil will be trans-shipped on eastward by train, barge and truck.

But assurance that the final 857-mile link would be completed came today when Chairman Donald M. Nelson of the War Production board said that 224,000 tons of steel would be allocated for the extension.

Petroleum Coordinator Harold L. Ickes said the line would be laid from Norris City across Indiana and Ohio to Phoenixville, Pa., from where branch lines will be laid to the Philadelphia area.

Expected to ease the overflow pressure which has forced shutting down of some southwestern oil fields for lack of an outlet, the 1,380-mile line will be a 24-incher all the way to Phoenixville, at least, Ickes said.

Traitor's Execution Delayed

Max Stephan, above, German-born naturalized American citizen, who received the first death sentence for treason under a 152-year-old federal law after conviction in Detroit for aiding an escaped German prisoner of war, will not be hanged Nov. 13 as scheduled, U. S. District Attorney J. C. Lehr has announced. The delay is the result of an appeal from the conviction, now before the U. S. circuit court of appeals in Cincinnati, and the court is in recess until Nov. 30.

Fugitive Dead, Officer Wounded In Gunfight On Woodward Avenue

Detroit, Oct. 28, (AP)—A suburban patrolman was shot and wounded tonight by a holdup fugitive who killed himself with a second, hidden gun while handcuffed in police custody.

Mt. Carmel hospital physicians said the patrolman, Elmer Jubelt of suburban Ferndale, would recover. Police said the fugitive, who led Jubelt and another officer a wild two-and-a-half mile chase on Woodward avenue, Detroit main north-south artery, and adjoining streets, was J. Walter Dutchey, 37.

Patrolman James Sark, Jublet's partner in a police cruiser, said they came upon Dutchey attempting to hold up Richard Howe, proprietor of a Woodward avenue filling station in Ferndale, and gave chase when Dutchey sought to escape in his car.

Sark said Jubelt drove the cruiser while he emptied both his own and his partner's service revolvers at the getaway car. Dutchey's car crashed at Woodward and Marshall, Sark continued, and Jublet was shot in the abdomen as the two patrolmen closed in on the fugitive.

Sark said he then overpowered Dutchey, and with the aid of other patrolmen took him to the Ferndale police station, where the prisoner, although handcuffed, drew a second pistol from his clothing and shot himself in the head.

Ferndale officers said addresses in Georgia and in Flint and Battle Creek, Mich., were found in Dutchey's clothing. His automobile bore three bullet holes, apparently caused by Sark's shots.

POOL OF FARM LABOR FORMED

Deferments Ordered for Essential Production of Food Products

Lansing, Oct. 28 (AP)—The state selective service system moved today to cooperate in the creation of what in effect would be a labor "pool" to stabilize employment on dairy, livestock and poultry farms.

Telegrams were addressed to local draft boards and boards of appeal instructing them to place in Class III-B "all dairy, livestock and poultry farm workers or producers who are already deferred on account of dependents Class III-A)."

Such farm workers and producers who have no dependents but who are considered essential to continued production of those products will be classified in II-A, the directive said. Both classes II-A and II-B are composed of those who have occupational deferments.

"All such workers found to be not essential in present employment will be referred to U. S. employment serivce and to county war boards for placement on other farms where their skill is needed," the directive continued. It was issued over the signature of Col. E. M. Rosecrans, state selective service director.

Backstopping the order, the document said, is an agreement by both the army and navy to refuse enlistment to the farm workers and producers affected, unless the local draft board certifies that they are neither in Class II-A, II-B or III-B, and that they are are not entitled to any of those classifications.

Order to refer those not essential in their present employment to the U. S. employment service and war boards, the headquarters said, could be interpreted as meaning that a farmer who produces only enough for his own needs would have the choice of going into the army-provided he meets physical and dependency tests—or taking employment in the production of food for others.

LONDON AMAZED BY FIRST LADY

Tireless Activity Wears Out Scotland Yard Veteran Guards

BY GLADWIN HILL

London, Oct. 28. (AP)—Englishmen are incredulous over "the eternal stamina of the woman."

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt has had that effect on them since her arrival in Britain five days ago.

The personal charm of America's first lady has evoked pleased exclamations everywhere, but it is her tireless activity and the effortless way in which she spends whole days wearing out shoe-leather visiting war establishments that has caused them to tip their hats in admiration.

In less than a week Mrs. Roosevelt has covered perhaps as much as a thousand miles just on jaunts around London. She has been on the go from as early as 7 a. m. to as late as 2 a. m. and appeared in half a dozen different places in a day. Not only this, but she has displayed as much enthusiasm watching girls tinker with gasoline engines at 7 o'clock in the evening as she did at one o'clock in the morning.

The effects of the pace have begun to tell on her two Scotland Yard escorts. Veterans with years of leg work behind them, they are shifting ruefully from one tired "dog" to another.

Last Saturday Mrs. Roosevelt wore reporters down on her inspections of St. Paul's Cathedral, air raid shelters, the bombed area and civilian defense workers.

FIGHTING LULL IS INDICATED IN SOLOMONS

TOKYO MOBILIZATION FOR SEA THRUST INTERRUPTED

BY RICHARD L. TURNER

Washington, Oct. 28. (AP)—Japanese trying to take the vital airfield on Guadalcanal are being mowed down in far greater numbers than the American defenders, the navy announced today in a communique which also described the damage to enemy equipment as "very heavy."

Possibly because of the losses they have suffered since they launched their full-scale offensive on Oct. 23, the Japanese reduced their operations on the night of Oct. 26-27 to several "small scale thrusts" against the American positions. All of these attacks were thrown back.

Enemy Not Withdrawing

Otherwise, naval officers interpreted a communique making these announcements today as indicating that the fighting in the Solomons was in a lull. They emphasized however, that there was nothing to indicate that Japanese naval forces had withdrawn from the area of the fighting.

After a series of furious sea battles which erupted at several points in the vicinity of the Solomons over the week-end, it was only natural that both sides should be catching their breath and taking stock of the resulting situation.

Describing the losses in the land fighting, the communique said:

"Enemy losses in men and equipment in troop actions on the island since October 23 have been very heavy as compared to our own."

U. S. Losses Light

Naval officers added to this the information that American losses have been light.

The period covered by the statement of losses included much land fighting. This reached an apparent climax on the night of October 24-25.

Then an attack from the south penetrated positions held by the army. The Japanese were driven back before dawn, however, and all American positions were recaptured. Meanwhile, marines on the north of the airfield, gained some ground.

Pearl Harbor, Oct. 28 (AP)—The hordes of Hirohito were mobilized with a superiority of ships, planes and men today for what appears to be a major thrust against key American bases and communication lines on the route to Australia the New Hebrides and the Fiji Islands.

The mobilization was coincident with the assault to recapture Guadalcanal, where even before the naval battle of October 26 the enemy had landed tanks and artillery and had swelled troop forces to perhaps 40,000 men.

NAZI SABOTEUR ENDS HIS STORY

Ernest Burger Displays Anger At Chicago Treason Trial

Chicago, Oct. 28. (AP)—Ernest Peter Burger, one of the eight Nazi saboteurs who were smuggled into the United States by submarines, finished his story of the plot today with a display of anger over the question of whether he had saved his skin by turning against his confederates.

He was on the witness stand at the trial of six German-Americans on treason charges when Defense Attorney Paul Warnholtz asked: "Were you promised immunity if you testified against other members at the military commission trial in Washington?"

Burger drew himself up stiffly, stared haughily at the lawyer and declared:

"I may remind you, sir, that you are speaking to a German soldier. The United States government respected me by not offering any promises. I expect the same of you, sir."

Burger and George John Dasch were sentenced to prison when their six fellow conspirators were condemned to death, and Attorney General Biddle later reported they had "helped considerably" in preparing the case against those who were executed.

The eight were tried at the same time, and all testified. One of the witnesses was Mrs. Erna Haupt, mother of Herbert Hans Haupt, one of the saboteurs.

tors in regard to the naval battle.

First, a Tokyo naval announcement said it took place in the midst of Japanese mobilization; second, the Japanese term it the battle of the south Pacific, and, third, it took place some 300 miles northeast of Guadalcanal and within a day's striking distance of American positions in the New Hebrides.

Armada At Truk

The Japanese had completed two mass landings on Guadalcanal, and while these forces started land assaults against marine and army troops, a powerful striking force of battleships, carriers, cruisers and destroyers was streaking eastward around the Solomon Islands — apparently moving toward the New Hebrides when the battle contact was made with American sea and air forces.

The only other Japanese moves, since the battle of Midway in June crumpled their Hawaii invasion plan, have been the building of a submarine base at Kiska in the Aleutians and the infiltration of the southern Solomons—the latter having been halted August 7 by American marines landing on Guadalcanal.

During these past four months, a powerful invasion armada apparently was being made ready at Truk for the south Pacific drive which now is underway.

Coast Guards And Marines Arrange To Enlist Women

Pittsburgh, Oct. 28, (AP)—Rear Admiral Randall Jacobs, chief of Navy personnel, said today the U. S. Marine Corps, as well as the Coast Guard, plans to enlist women.

Names mentioned for the proposed new groups were "Marinettes" for Marine women enlistees and "Warcogs" (Women's Auxiliary Reserve of the Coast Guards) for Coast Guard women enlistees, Admiral Jacobs said. He added that women will be accepted for both divisions as apprentice seamen, trained in naval schools and assigned to the Marines or Coast Guard for service in the United States only.

munique from the U. S. headquarters.

"In a series of combined operations with allied light bombers, medium bombardment aircraft bombed enemy landing grounds, motor convoys, tank concentrations and the Matruh dock area. Many direct hits were observed.

"Our fighters flying on patrol and bomber escort, and our fighter-bomber missions encountered fairly heavy enemy air opposition. Three ME-109's and four CR-42 Italian fighters were shot down."

Battlefront dispatches said the Americans had a hard-fighting part in the biggest aerial struggle of the day.

It developed during the afternoon when 20 German Messerschmitt 109's, 20 German Stukas and 20 CR-42 Italian fighters tried to intercept a flight of allied fighter-bombers returning from an attack on the Daba landing ground.

Heavily outnumber, American fighter pilots roared into the melee.

WETMORE MAN AIR HERO

With the Allied Air Forces in the Western Desert, Oct. 27, (Delayed), (AP) — American fighter pilots in the western desert had their greatest day today, shooting down seven axis planes and bringing their total to 17 destroyed since they started operation in Egypt a month ago.

Today's performance gave the top-scoring squadrons—the Black Scorpions and Flying Cocks—parity with eight planes destroyed each. Another squadron, whose insignia is a Disney-like Pelican wearing a gangster cap and boxing gloves, got its first plane.

The Black Scorpions' score since the present offensive started:

Lieut. Lyman Middleditch of Highland, N. J., four destroyed.

Lieut. William S. Beck, Nashville, Tenn., one destroyed.

Capt. Glade Bilby of Skidmore, Mo., one destroyed.

The Fighting Chocks scored as follows:

Lieut. Gilbert Wymond, Louisville, Ky., destroyed two.

Lieut. Roy E. Whittaker, Knoxville, Tenn., destroyed two.

Capt. Thomas W. Clark, Wetmore, Mich., destroyed two.

Lieut. Robert L. Metcalf, Hooker, Okla., destroyed one.

The Black Scorpions previous had been credited with two shot down and the Fighting Cocks one, to make their totals of eight each.

The first victory was brought to the Pelicans by their commander, Maj. Richard Fairlamb, Ridgewood, N. J., who shot down an Italian fighter.

In the operations the Americans have not lost a plane, although Lieut. Wymond and Capt. Marshall Sneed of Piggot, Okla., came home with bullet holes in their aircraft.

State Keeps Parks Open For Hunters

Lansing, Oct. 28, (AP)—Unless gasoline rationing calls a halt, normal park service will be maintained in Michigan this winter, the state conservation department has announced.

The department at present plans to keep 21 parks open during the fall, and early winter months at least, to serve hunting parties and offer winter sports facilities.

A survey, extending from January 1 to September 27, reveals that 7,382,031 persons visited the state parks this year, compared with 9,715,050 the previous year, while the number of campers decreased from 152,555 to 85,189.

Clark Gable Now Airforce Officer

Miami Beach, Fla., Oct. 28 (AP)—Onetime screen idol Clark Gable, now a trim, bronzed officer in the army air force, today called "individual discipline" on a nationwide scale a thing necessary for victory.

Gable spoke for 2,500 new air corps officers graduating from the Miami Beach Air Forces School. He stood on the speakers' platform facing his classmates and took with them the oath accepting commissions as second lieutenants.

Solons Rap Unplanned Recruiting Of Doctors; See Epidemic Dangers

Washington, Oct. 28 (AP)—The "unplanned recruiting" of doctors for the armed services has led the nation to "a dangerous health emergency," a senate subcommittee charged today in calling for immediate action to assure medical care for civilians as well as soldiers.

Senator Pepper (D-Fla), as chairman of the labor subcommittee on manpower, isued the report asserting that there had been "a tremendously unnecessary over-militarization of the doctor supply at the expense of the civilian population" and that "the nation has been fortunate to have avoided serious local or even national epidemics to date."

"If the information supplied this committee is accurate," the report said, "approximately one-third of the medical effectives of the country are now in the armed forces.

"According to the information received by the committee the military services desire to maintain their present ratio of approximately one doctor for every 100 men in service."

If that ratio is continued, the report declared, two out of three doctors will be in military service next year and there will be an average of only one doctor for each 3,000 civilians, contrasted with a national average of about one to 1,100 before the war.

"In some counties in the southern states, hitherto fairly well supplied with physicians, there is now only one doctor for 7,000 individuals," it continued.

The report charged that "foolish and dangerous" methods used to recruit physicians for military service had resulted in "hoarding and freezing unused doctors in the American armed forces in a ratio double that of the British."

"The conditions are so acute and dangerous," Pepper's report said, "that this preliminary report is made public with the recommendation that at the earliest possible moment the following steps should be taken:

"The president, as commander-in-chief, should order a survey to be made of over-supply and under-supply of medical personnel for both the armed forces and civilian needs.

"A reallocation should be made wherever it is determined an over-supply or under-supply exists.

"Instruction should be given to the war manpower commission to cease its procurement drive for doctors in all states where quotas have already been attained."

The committee expressed the belief that a civilian agency should be set up to supervise the recruiting of physicians.

TRAIN STRIKES DETROIT BUS AND KILLS 16

several were almost beyond identification even as to sex.

Fourteen of the sixteen bodies had been identified early tonight. They were those of:

Eugene Chlebnik, 15, Detroit high school sophomore; Mrs. Easter Kemp, 36, Detroit; Mrs. Pearl Jones, 38, Detroit; Miss Helen Chocianowicz, 17, Detroit high school senior; Mrs. Marie Le Fever, 35, Detroit school teacher; Norbert Turkowski, 25, Hamtramck; Mrs. Berdele Newby, 30, Detroit; Miss Clementine Gazda, 20, Detroit department store clerk; Robert W. Beith, 17, seminary student of Detroit; John Feschuk, 15, Detroit high school student; Mrs. Pauline Osadchuk, 47, Hamtramck; Roger Leleman, 19, University of Detroit freshman; Mrs. June Persicheno, 39, and Mrs. Helen Drake, both of Detroit.

Last to be identified were the bodies of Mrs. William Wendt, 25, of Detroit, whose husband is a coast guardsman, and Mrs. Betty Crosson, 32, of Hamtramck.

More than 25 persons were admitted to hospitals for treatment.

The accident occurred in suburban Hamtramck so close to the Detroit city limits that the front end of the bus, tossed aside by the train, was hurled against a coal company office in Detroit. Most of the passengers killed had been riding in the rear of the bus.

Crash Of Airliner Blamed On Sky Date

Los Angeles, Oct. 28, (AP)—A congressional committee today laid the blame for the crash of an airliner, killing its 12 occupants, to an air rendezvous between the pilot of an army bomber and the co-pilot of the commercial ship.

The two planes collided last Friday night near Palm Springs.

Today, the army formally charged the bomber pilot, 2nd Lt. W. N. Wilson of West Los Angeles, with manslaughter.

A few hours later, the congressional committee headed by Rep. Jack Nichols (D-Okla), reported that Lieutenant Wilson and the liner's co-pilot, First Officer L. F. Repport of Dallas, had met at a party the night before and Wilson had arranged his takeoff from the ferrying command airfield at Long Beach to conform to the liner's scheduled departure.

A coroner's jury at Palm Springs yesterday blamed the crash on collision of the two planes. An army board concurred in the finding today.

Moskegon Sheriff Prevents Escape Of 11 Prisoners

Muskegon, Mich., Oct. 28 (AP)—Eleven prisoners, all charged with felonies, were removed to a different cell today after Sheriff Peter E. Cardinal discovered they had battered nearly through the wall of a second-floor cell block.

Cardinal said the inmates used a pair of metal handles wrenched from a cell door to hack their way through all but one thickness of a two-foot wall. He said they covered the hole with a newspaper when anyone came near, and apparently had run a shower in the cell to cover the noise of the digging.

State School Head Stricken Suddenly

Lapeer, Mich., Oct. 28 (AP)—Funeral services will be held here Saturday for Dr. Fred P. Hanna, superintendent of the State Home and Training School, who died of a heart attack last night soon after he had aided in settling a disturbance among girl inmates in one of the institution's cottages.

Atendants said Dr. Hanna, who was 42, complained of a pain in his chest before he left the institution cottage and collapsed soon after returning to his own apartment. Dr. Harry Zemmem, the superintendent's physician, said Hanna previously had suffered similar pains and that, while the excitement at the cottage may have contributed to the fatal heart attack, it was impossible to declare that it was the sole cause.

King Of Denmark Sits Up In Bed

Stockholm, Sweden, Thursday, Oct. 29, (AP)—King Christian X of Denmark was reported early today recovering from pneumonia which developed after a fall from his horse.

For the first time he sat up in bed last night and smoked a cigarette and asked for the newspapers, reports from Copenhagen said.

Persons close to the king said the last 36 hours had brought a remarkable change in his illness but that the doctors could not say whether he was out of danger.

HELP IS NEEDED FOR BEET CROP

Large Acreage May Be Left In Ground In Lower Michigan

Lansing, Oct. 28 (AP)— A plea for additional labor to harvest thousands of acres of the Michigan sugar beet crop today was addressed to the executive office by Arthur A. Schupp, executive secretary of the Farmers and Manufacturers Beet Association at Saginaw.

The executive office staff referred the telegram appeal to the defense council and the U. S. employment service in Detroit, reporting these agencies had cooperated previously in providing additional labor supplies.

Schupp's telegram declared: "Present weather would indicate that without immediate assitance large acreage of sugar beets may be left in the ground this fall in this area.

"Present figures show that in Michigan 62,000 acres will remain in the ground and with favorable weather and using all available labor only 50,000 acres can be harvested." The message indicated that favorable weather meant no heavy freeze before November 15 and not more than five days of work lost because of wet weather.

"We have exhausted all our sources of labor and appeal to you for assistance in harvesting this crop," Schupp asserted.

Navy Won't Accept Vital War Workers

Washington, Oct. 28, (AP)—The Navy banned from enlistment today workers engaged in vital war industries, unless they present a release from their local draft boards.

It added that steps already had been taken to carry out the manpower commission policy announced yesterday. Specifically, the Navy said, men in selective service classifications based on vital industries or eligible for those categories must obtain selective service releases, and dairy, livestock and poultry farmers in a deferred classification will not be accepted.

The Navy said that agricultural regions, especially where farming activities are the principal industry, had been omitted from the Navy's drive for volunteers.

More U. M. Marines Arrive In England

London, Oct. 28 (AP)—Additional units of United States Marines led by Col. William T. Clement, a Bataan-Corregidor hero, have arrived in the British Isles and are at battle stations, the U. S. Marine Corps headquarters announced tonight.

American marine units already here have engaged in joint training with the Royal Marines.

Colonel Clement was on the staff of Admiral C. Hart in the Philippines at the outbreak of the war. When Admiral Hart moved his headquarters to the Dutch East Indies, Clement jointed the American fighters on Bataan peninsula, serving as liaison between army and navy units until he was ordered to Australia. He escaped from Corregidor island by submarine.

Salvaging Of Hose To Start Nov. 16

Washington, Oct. 28, (AP)—Salvage collection of discarded silk and nylon stockings will begin November 16.

The war production board announced that retail stores through out the country have agreed to establish collection depots.

Reclaimed silk and nylon can be used to make powder bags and other military equipment.

There are about 120,000 blind persons in the United States.

Daddy Will Come Home, Son Of Lost Wasp Flier Says

Arlington, Mass., Oct. 28 (AP)—Sturdy, five-year-old Jackie Shea, whose warrior father sent him an inspiring code of life—In case "I don't come back"—clung hard tonight to a belief that "my Daddy will come home, I don't care what anybody says."

Listed as "missing in action" and last seen leading a hopeless fight against the flames that consumed the airplane carrier Wasp, Commander John Joseph Shea sent his son a letter from the Pacific war theater—a letter so touching that many felt it would live as a part of the history of the current war.

The full and exact text follows:

"Dear Jackie:

"This is the first letter I have written directly to my little son. I am thrilled to know you can read it all by yourself. If you miss some of the words it will be because I do not write very plainly. Mother will help you in that case, I am sure.

"I was certainly glad to hear your voice over the long distance telephone. It sounded as though I were right in the living room with you. You sounded as though you missed your daddy very much. I miss you, too, more than anyone will ever know. It is too bad this war could not have been delayed a few more years so that I could grow up again with you and do all the things I planned to do when you were old enough to go to school.

"I thought how nice it would be to come home early in the afternoon and play ball with you and go mountain climbing and see the trees, brooks and learn all about woodcraft, hunting, fishing, swimming and other things like that. I suppose we must be brave and put these things off now for a while.

"When you are a little bigger you will know why your daddy is not home so much any more. You know we have a big country and we have ideals as to how people should live and enjoy the riches of it and how each is born with equal rights to life, freedom and the pursuit of happiness. Unfortunately there are some countries in the world where they do not have these ideals, where a boy cannot grow up to be what he wants to be with no limit on his opportunities to be a great man such as a great priest, statesman, doctor, soldier, businessman, etc.

"Because there are people in countries who want to change our nation, its ideals, its form of government and way of life we must leave our homes and families to fight. Fighting for the defense of our country, ideals, homes and honor is an honor and a duty which your daddy has to do before he can come home and settle down with you and mother. When it is done he is coming home to be with you always and forever. So wait just a little while longer. I am afraid it will be more than the two weeks you told me on the phone.

"In the meantime take good care of mother, be a good boy and grow up to be a good young man. Study hard when you go to school. Be a leader in everything good in life. Be a good Catholic and you can't help being a good American. Play fair always. Strive to win but if you must lose lose like a gentleman and a good sportsman.

"Don't ever be a quitter, either in sports or in your business or profession when you grow up. Get all the education you can. Stay close to Mother and follow her advice. Obey her in everything, no matter how you may at times disagree. She knows what is best and will never let you down or lead you away from the right and honorable things of life.

"If I don't get back you will have to be mother's protector because you will be the only one she has. You must grow up to take my place as well as your own in her life and heart.

'Love your grandmother and granddad as long as they live. They, too, will never let you down. Love your aunts and see them as often as you can. Last of all don't ever forget your Daddy. Pray for him to come back and if it is God's will that he does not, be the kind of a boy and man your Daddy wants you to be.

"Kiss Mother for me every night. Goodbye for now.

"'With all my love and devotion for Mother and you.

"Your Daddy".

lay. If there is a dispute of any kind and a conciliator cannot settle it, the case will be referred to local panels of three persons representing industry, labor and the public. If the panel's decision is unanimous, it will be final. If one member of the panel dissents and wishes to appeal, the war labor board in Washington will take the case and rule on it.

No Thanksgiving Holiday Vacation At Michigan State

East Lansing, Oct. 28, (AP)—The traditional Thanksgiving recess has been cancelled at Michigan State college to ease the transportation problem but classes will not be held Thanksgiving Day, November 26, President John A. Hannah announced today.

State's 6,400 students will attend classes as usual Friday and Saturday, November 27 and 28, Hannah said, and the fall term resultingly will close December 15, three days earlier than usual.

Hannah said students who fail to attend classes the day before Thanksgiving or the following Friday and Saturday will be charged with "double cuts."

The Michigan State News, student publication, last week editorially urged that students forego the holiday vacation to the extent of attending classes on Thanksgiving Day.

Birth

Dr. and Mrs. T. R. Marquardt of Lombard, Ill., are the parents of a daughter weighing 7 pounds, born October 23, at the Elmhurst hospital. The baby has been named Vicki Lynn. Mrs. Marquardt was formerly Grace Olmsted, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Olmsted.

Personals

Mrs. Herman Brammer returned to her home Saturday from a visit in Chicago and Milwaukee with relatives and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Remington and daughter, Nancy and Mrs. Victor Malcolm arrived Sunday evening for a short visit here with relatives and friends. They left for their homes in Detroit, on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. William Rauls spent the week end in Fond du Lac, Wis., where they were among members of Mr. Raul's family to celebrate the 76th birthday anniversary of his mother, Mrs. Anna Rauls. They were accompanied by Mrs. Clarence Menary who visited over the week end in Green Bay with Mrs. Percy Mercier.

Henry Ward and friend, Roy Warren, of Kalamazoo, visited the past week end at the home of Mr. Ward's mother, Mrs. Martha Ward. Henry is leaving for the army Oct. 30.

Joe Nolan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Nolan, who had been employed at the Willow Run bomber plant in Ypsilanti, arrived home Saturday morning from an extended trip out west where he spent several weeks in Berkeley, Calif. He expects to join a branch of the arm forces in the near future.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen Hebert of Eagle River, Wis., visited a few days of the earlier part of this week here with relatives and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Camps and family left Monday for a week's visit in Kalamazoo and Detroit.

Lloyd Bouchard, brother of Mrs. Jake Todish, enlisted recently in the army at Detroit where he was employed. He is now at Camp Custer.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Smith and son, Jimmy, and Raymond James returned to their homes in Detroit after spending the week end here. Mrs. Raymond James remained at the Frank James home with her daughter, who had been staying with her grandparents.

Joe Sefcik returned to his home Tuesday following a motor trip to Chicago and Detroit where he visited with relatives.

Mrs. Emil LeBrasseur and children, George and Wilma left Wednesday of this week for West Bend, Wis., where they will make their future home. Mr. LeBrasseur is employed at the West Bend Aluminum company.

Mrs. Robert Eggert is visiting in Marquette at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Bergman.

Surprise Party

Mrs. Wilfred Bedard was pleasantly surprised Monday evening by the members of her sewing club when they called at her home in Gladstone. They were Mrs. Clayton Douville, Mrs. Howard Olmsted, Mrs. Jack Schwartz jr., Mrs. Joe Nolan, Mrs. Emil LeBrasseur and Mrs. Victor Malcolm of Detroit who visited a few days here with relatives and friends.

Has New Ship

Capt. Lawrence J. Gallagher of Escanaba has been appointed master of one of the new Liberty ships of the C-3 type and is leaving Sacramento, Calif., this week for the east to assume command. During the past several months, he has been in charge of a vessel hauling war supplies to General MacArthur in Australia. He was in the Coral sea zone at the time the aircraft carrier Lexington was sunk by the Japanese.

Briefly Told

Search Fails—Continued search yesterday afternoon for the body of Fred Samuelson, 27, Escanaba commercial fisherman who drowned a week ago in Little Bay de Noc, was unsuccessful. The search was conducted by the United States Coast Guard at the request of Sheriff William E. Miron. Undersheriff John Frederickson accompanied the Coast Guard in its search.

The coastline of California is more than 1,000 miles long.

Another Pearl Harbor

Something is wrong with our command in the Pacific. Anybody, be he the greenest layman, can sense that.

We had Pearl Harbor at the beginning. Admiral Kimmel and Gen. Short were asleep. Brave men died at the naval base, trying to fire immobilized guns to protect the fleet; equally brave men died at Hickam field trying to get their planes off the ground. All this because our commanders had not taken precautions, or, maybe, because they had not been sufficiently advised by Washington. Who knows? The story has never been told.

Now we have the disclosure of another Pearl Harbor, this time in the Solomons. The story has been kicking around in Washington gossip and is now fully verified by Hanson Baldwin, the New York Times military editor, who was in the battle area.

Mr. Baldwin says that despite patrol warnings of the approach of a Japanese fleet, our naval commanders kept their heavy cruiser division within narrow confines, so that when the Japs did arrive our ships were "surprised like sitting ducks." No need to recount the details here—we lost the cruisers and some other units with them.

What is Washington's answer? To change commanders. Admiral Ghormley is relieved, Admiral Halsey takes his place. The very necessity for change is an admission that something is wrong. One would have thought, with dangers thickening all through the summer and fall of 1941, that an alert commander-in-chief, an alert secretary of war and an alert secretary of the navy would have had the best possible men in Hawaii. But there were Kimmel and Short.

One would have thought, when the Solomons campaign was undertaken, that the best possible man would have been chosen. But Admiral Ghormley fails in a few weeks and has to be replaced. What is the basis of choice?

We do not undertake here to say what is wrong. We are not of Mr. Roosevelt's "typewriter expert" brigade. But we do suggest a few possibilities to be explored, by the Truman committee or whatever body undertakes to investigate.

Are our commanders chosen on the basis of merit or of politics? In other words, is the thing that dogged Lincoln in the Civil war until he himself found a Grant, now dogging this war? Are the rivalries and the cliques within the war and navy departments doing this?

Or does it go still higher? Are these defeats due to the kind of secretary of war and the kind of secretary of the navy that we happen to have because it was politically expedient to put these two men in from a political opposition when a third term campaign was approaching?

Or does it go higher yet? Admiral Kimmel, a political admiral, was the friend of the president. So was Admiral Ghormley an especial friend. War can know no friendships when there is work to be done.

Or is it a matter of divided command? The reason for dividing up the Pacific as has been done has never been fully given. The Solomons are in the Australian group, but this campaign is based on Hawaii and New Caledonia. Admiral Halsey, his ships and marines, are fighting the Guadalcanal battle, but it is Gen. MacArthur who is destroying the Japanese bases farther north. The New Guinea and Solomon campaigns are one to the Japs, but they are two to us.

Whatever the difficulty, it is not to be charged up to our fighting men. The marines on Guadalcanal are as tough as soldiers come. Our men went into the Coral sea battle and in at Midway as heroically as men ever fought. And they stood up to it, too, in this blunder in the Solomons, as this brief paragraph shows:

"One of the first enemy shells struck the bridge of the division commander and tore off his leg. But he stood there, gripping the railing, and fought his ship and led his division until they were sunk."

The trouble must be—it has to be—in a Washington that postpones its courts-martial until "after the war."

It's About Time

AS election day approaches and national and world events cast their menacing clouds over a people who are giving their all, without achieving the degree of success they hoped for, it appears that the New Deal forces have committed another grievous error, in attempting to make patriotism their ally in the balloting of next Tuesday.

If Republican leaders are smart they can garner facts to prove a claim that politics and not patriotism is still having too much to do with the prosecution of our war effort and a real act of patriotism would be to kick out of the picture those who still place political considerations above national good and the welfare of our fighting men.

When a great independent newspaper such as the Milwaukee Journal can make the following bold statement, it's about time for the real patriots of the nation — the common people, to come forward and do something about it:

> "One would have thought when the Solomons campaign was undertaken, the best possible man would have been chosen. But Admiral Ghormley fails in a few weeks and has to be replaced.——*****
> "Are our commanders chosen on the basis of merit or politics? In other words is the thing that dogged Lincoln in the Civil war, until he found himself a Grant, now dogging this war? Are the rivalries and the cliques of the war and navy departments doing this?
> "Or does it go still higher? Are these defeats due to the kind of secretary of war and the kind of secretary of the navy that we happen to have, because it was politically expedient to put these two men in from a political opposition, when a third term campaign was approaching?
> "Or does it go higher yet? Admiral Kimmel, a political admiral, was the friend of the president. So was Admiral Ghormley an especial friend. War can know no friendships when there is work to be done".

If it is true that the American people have not responded wholeheartedly to the government's pleas for a united war effort, because the government, itself, has thus far failed to set them an example, it certainly cannot be called an act of patriotism to continue that government in full power of our national and state affairs.

Our fighting men are dying—your boy and my boy—on the far flung battle fronts of the world.

And they are still playing politics in Washington, in Michigan and in every other state of the union.

It's about time the real patriots — the common people, had something to say about this matter.

Deferments for Farmers?

RECOGNITION of the importance of agriculture in the nation's war program is given in the War Manpower commission's announcements that plans are being made to obtain draft deferments for dairy, livestock and poultry farmers.

In addition, an effort will be made to keep workers on the farms through wage stabilization and barring their employment by other industries. The army, navy and other military services will also be asked to refrain from recruiting these essential farm workers.

Production on the dairy, livestock and poultry farms has been decreasing in certain areas, all of which is cause for serious concern to War Manpower commission officials. Food is just as important as ammunition in winning the war, for it will be recalled it was starvation, and not lack of courage and guns, that eventually forced the brave fighting men of Bataan and Corregidor to surrender to the Japanese.

It must be pointed, however, that the program, announced by the War Manpower commission, is apparently only in the idea stage. Whether it will be accepted by the Selective Service administration remains to be seen. In the meantime, local draft boards will receive their orders to fill designated quotas from their counties and will have to comply with these requirements, whether it means taking essential agricultural labor, or not.

Sherman Was Right

A SYMPOSIUM held at the National Association of Commercial Secretaries in Detroit last week showed that more than 50 per cent of the communities represented will hold no Christmas celebrations this year, and more than 75 per cent of the rest will greatly reduce the costs of holiday festivities. Reason: the Government expects the average celebration to cost not more than $25 in all, and besides, Christmas decorations will be almost impossible to procure. In addition, war demands made on power and lighting systems in many towns do not leave enough margin for holiday spreads.

Over in the Canadian parliament at Ottawa, the House of Commons sub-committee suggests that Canadian newspapers be reduced in size, and that they omit double-page adds, comic strips, and unnecessary features. Pages dealing with horse racing and betting were especially condemned.

Many an Upper Peninsula citizen has visited Hialeah Park, famous Miami racing center. Since the Miami Chamber of Commerce is advising prospective visitors not to bring their cars south this winter, some folks have wondered what Hialeah will do for transportation, if there is racing. Florida realizes $4,300,000 a year from horse and dog racing, and a large part of the 'take' comes to the state treasury from Hialeah. A lumber company has offered an old wood-burning locomotive, and some wooden coaches may be available to carry visitors out to the park. The fact that an eastern magazine speaks of the country's racing parks as 'boob-traps' probably will not deter the many who enjoy a good horse race.

We know what Sherman said about war. These are straws to indicate the wind drift. They are nothing to what is coming in the next few months.

The Atlantic Charter

WENDELL WILLKIE'S report that the people of Asia and eastern Europe doubt the Atlantic Charter applies to them brought a clarifying statement from President Roosevelt at this week's White House press conference.

The president explained that the charter was so named because it was drafted aboard a battleship on the Atlantic ocean, as was the case with the treaty of Versailles and other pacts. He insisted it was intended as a charter of world freedom, by which the signatory nations agreed to respect the right of all peoples to choose the form of government under which they will live.

Wendell Willkie has served the cause of freedom in bringing from President Roosevelt a reaffirmation of the objects of the Atlantic Charter. Its eight principles must be reiterated time and time again to bolster the morale of those peoples now fighting Axis aggression. Repetition will also refresh the memory of those statesmen who will someday gather around the conference table to draft a plan for permanent world peace.

"VACATIONS" ON FARMS
(Grand Rapids Press)

That state and national officials are not waiting until next summer to meet the demands of farm manpower is another encouraging sign that the country is "on its toes" to solve the problems of wartime economy. By laying plans now it may be possible to forstall the shortages predicted in the vital production of foodstuffs.

Plans advanced in Michigan to recruit and train a "youth army" to work on the farms next year are commendable. There are thousands of 16 and 17-year-olds wholly capable of giving assistance. Too young for military service and even too young for many of the tasks of industry, they are nevertheless excellent material for the agricultural field. Naturally they will not be expected to do the more complicated jobs on the farms, but they can milk, fork hay, pitch bundles, hoe, care for stock, pick fruit and handle many of the ordinary tasks.

It is important, too, that they be trained. Youngsters in cities will need toughening up, in many cases, before they are ready for long hours and strenuous work in the open. Any farm boy can tell his city cousin that it's not a lark.

"Vacations on farms" may well be the popular slogan of 1943, not only for youths but also for many older persons. There are many in offices and shops who would find no better vacation plan than to assist in the fields.

Vacation means in most cases merely a change of occupation. Generally it isn't physical rest that office workers require, but a new perspective. They'll find that on the farm. And those who give a hand to this type of toil will find that they return to their unusual tasks invigorated and strengthened.

There is a lot of talk about "physical fitness" programs to toughen citizens for the war effort. There isn't a better place to improve physical fitness than in the harvest fields.

Farmers properly complain that schoolboys and parttime volunteers lack the necessary "know how" to be of value in farm work. But by careful selection and training through the winter months it should be possible to recruit a substantial army of workers who will at least be capable enough to relieve the crisis in farm production.

A woman's crying need is either a hanky or a fur coat.

SURPRISE WORD OF THE WEEK

It appears that most of us have failed to note that there are two "t's" in the word QUANTITY, for the average speaker pronounces it "quan-i-ty." The words identity, identify, and identification also suffer a similar amputation, possibly by falise association with such words as quality, vanity. At any rate, the first "t" in these words should be pronounced. We should be sure to say:

QUAN-ti-ty
eye-DEN-ti-ty eye-DEN-ti fie eye-DEN-ti-fi-KAY'shun

It's Hard to Believe

Quincy: Why is the man who deals in stocks and bonds referred to as a BROKER?—H. D. M.

Answer: Not from the fact that he sometimes goes "broke," for the word broker has no connection with the past tense of the verb "too break." It is the English corruption of the Old French word broquier (from brochier), meaning —hold tight, Wall Street—"he who opens a cask of wine!" In the Middle Age, a broquier was a retailer of wines, and later, by extension, any small retailer or peddler.

It's hard to believe that a stock broker and a wine seller are brothers under the skin, but it's true.

Foreign News Analyzed

BY CONSTANTINE BROWN

Washington, D. C.—The pot which has been simmering in the South Pacific for the last three weeks has now reached boiling point and the main battle between the American and the Japanese forces on land, in the air and on the seas is expected to develop in the next few days.

Two thirds of the Japs' entire fleet is believed to be concentrated in the South Pacific, and they have spread their forces farther south than Guadalcanal. It appears that a Japanese task force is now near Espiritu Santo, an important American air base in the New Hebrides situated halfway between the Solomons and New Caledonia, our main supply center for the operating forces.

A Jap submarine was reported last week to have appeared in the neighborhood of that American-held island and shelled our positions. This was only a minor incident but it indicated that the Japs were feeling their way. In some military quarters it is believed the enemy might attempt a landing in Espiritu Santo in an effort to capture the airdromes which have been established there and thus interfere with the aerial support the Americans have been giving to the besieged Solomons.

Espiritu Santo is not more than 600 miles from Guadalcanal and about the same distance from Noumea, the capital of New Caledonia which has been occupied by an American army force.

—TAG GAME NEARS END—

According to available information it appears that the Japanese high command figures that the "tag game" it has been playing with the United States naval and air forces must now come to an end. In spite of the the heroic resistence of the Marine and Army forces at Guadalcanal and in spite of heavy losses, the enemy garrisons on the island have been substantially increased in the last 10 days and they are now reported to be ready for an all-out attack.

But it must be remembered that the Japanese forces in that area are so strong that a simultaneous attack against our bases in the New Hebrides must not be overlooked. And the question arises as to whether we have sufficient naval and air power in that area to meet a two-fold attack in both the Solomons and the New Hebrides.

If the Japanese succeeded in establishing themselves in the New Hebrides the situation in the Solomons immediately would become very precarious and at the same time the main base in New Caledonia might become endangered.

The Japs are not reckless but seem to care little about their losses provided they can obtain their objectives. The losses they suffered in the landing operations on Guadalcanal have been described as very heavy. Yet they have come back and again and again until they are reported to now have a strong foothold in the island with a force probably equalling our own. They have landed tanks and heavy artillery. They still lack an airfield but their carriers and the beaches they are able to use in the neighboring islands make up for that gap.

—U. S. OUTLOOK GLOOMY—

On the whole our position in the South Pacific is described by competent observers as gloomy. The arrival of Vice Admiral William Halsey, to replace Vice-Admiral Robert Lee Ghormley as commander-in-chief of our operating forces cannot change the situation materially. Admiral Ghormley was detached chiefly because his health has not been good for some time and the strain of the continuous battle and the heavy responsibility of operating with "too little" have been telling on him.

Admiral Halsey, who has always been a "hitting admiral," had been ashore for some time to recover from over - fatigue due to continuous operations at sea since Pearl Harbor. The task force under his command has been hitting the Japanese hard since the action in the Gilbert Islands. There is no question that Admiral Halsey will do the utmost with the forces he has at his disposal.

The strength of the American forces is, of course, a military secret. We know from official communiques that we have suffered severe losses since August when we attacked and captured a portion of the Solomons. But the extent to which these losses have been replaced and what additional units have been added to meet the Japanese fleet must remain undisclosed.

There is no question, however, that the situation is critical and the results of the battle do not depend so much on the bravery, skill and resourcefulness of our commanders and our men as to the extent we have been able to equalize the Japanese forces sent against us.

Whether the major battle has already been engaged is not yet clear. But from the available information it appears that if the two fleets have not yet joined in a final battle, it is only a question of days before the showdown.

Q. How many elective offices are there in the Federal Government? M. N.

A. There are 533 filled by popular vote; the Presidency, Vice Presidency, 96 seats in the Senate, and 435 in the House of Representatives.

Q. Are there any independent Negro countries? K. L. D.

A. There are two—Haiti and Liberia.

Q. How long was the Venetian Republic in existence? M. M.

A. It was organized under the first Doge in 697 A. D. and continued for more than a thousand years. The ancient republican government was overthrown by Napoleon's armies and the last Doge, Lodovico Manin abdicated on May 12, 1797.

Q. Are there any elephants that do not have tusks? J. F. W.

A. The elephant of Ceylon rarely has tusks.

Q. What is the longest beard on record? G. D. F.

A. Notes and Queries says that the longest on record is in the museum of Braunau, Upper Austria, and measures 8 feet 9 inches. The owner, Hans Steininger, in 1567, stepped on it, fell downstairs and broke his neck.

Q. Is a male black widow spider as large as a female? J. W.

A. The male spiders seldom grow larger than three-quarters of an inch and are generally about a fourth as large as the female.

Q. Who was the blind botanist who could distinguish flowers by means of his tongue? C. J. F.

A. John Grimshaw Wilkinson. He could name thousands of different flowers by touching them with the tip of his tongue.

Q. How long has All Saints' Day been observed? G. E.

A. It was instituted in the seventh century to commemorate all the saints, known or unknown.

Q. What is meant by fog-drip? N. C.

A. It is the process whereby the moisture from drifting fog or clouds is caught by trees and bushes and then shed upon the ground. The island of Ascension, in the South Atlantic, obtains its water supply mainly in this fashion.

Q. What are the ingredients of modeling wax? B. D. R.

A. Mixtures of stearic acid, beeswax, and paraffin wax are frequently used to make modeling wax. Beeswax gives toughness to the mixture. A little clay is sometimes added to modify the texture.

Q. Please give the origin of the term "mutual admiration society." S. McA.

A. The phrase comes from Oliver Wendell Holmes' "Autocrat of the Breakfast Table."

Q. Was the song "Praise the Lord, and Pass the Ammunition" based upon fact? R. J. B.

A. In his "Praise the Lord, and Pass the Ammunition," Frank Loesser has expanded on the words of a Roman Catholic priest who while serving as a chaplain in Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, on December 7, 1941, dropped his Bible and picked up a gun when the Japanese attacked.

Q. How much more heat is thrown off by a radiator painted with oil paint than one painted with a metallic finish? F. E. K.

A. According to the National Association of Heating and Ventilating Engineers, an oil paint finish radiates about one-sixth more heat than a metallic paint finish.

Hollywood Column

Off the sound track: Reason you haven't seen more of Hollywood's French importation, Jean Gabin, on the screen is that the actor is having a difficult time mastering English. He's too busy taking diction and English lessons to appear in front of a camera. He does find time, though, to work almost every night as a dishwasher at the Hollywood Canteen. When someone asked him why he preferred the Canteen's kitchen to the more glamorous filmtown night spots, Gabin replied:

"It's wonderful. No producers, no directors. No one telling me how to talk English."

Hedy Lamaar is trying to talk producers into casting her opposite Bob Hope in a picture. She wants to be his favorite brunet.

Odd to see Helene Reynolds playing a woman older than Joan Bennett in the picture, "Girl Trouble." When Miss Reynolds was 12 years old she was writing fan letters—to Joan Bennett.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY PETER EDSON

Some time about mid-December there will be another of these government-called conferences in Washington, having to do with how much you eat and what and when, in the coming year. The conference will be a meeting of the big, medium and little shot food processors. Not the farmers, but the packers, the canners, the bottlers, the dryers, the dehydrators and the manufacturers of prepared foods.

There may or there may not be a presidentially appointed food administrator present. Representatives of the food processors hope there will be some one man in charge of all food distribution by that time, to do the job that Herbert Hoover did in the last war. But whether there is centralized control by then, food industry men hope that through the existing Food Requirements Committee in the War Production Board setup, the government will have all its requirements figured out so that the industry will know how much of every food item will be needed by Army, Navy, lend-lease and the U. S. civilian population.

Not only that, but also what kind of a container will be available to pack it in? With all these programs lined up like ducks in a row by mid-December, the food distributors figure they'll be able to plan on keeping the nation supplied throughout 1943.

A further advantage of having all this in order for the coming year is that with or without a food administrator it will stop a lot of disquieting rumors and false reports now floating around on what foods are going to be rationed, and how. Sugar is the only commodity under full rationing now.

SHORTAGES REPORTED

But all over this broad land there are daily reports of local shortages of coffee, tea, and numerous items of canned goods. Scares develop, hoarding starts, shortages are accentuated and confusion mounts. It is to eliminate this confusion that the need for a national food administrator is being talked of more.

The flat statements of several months ago that there would be no shortages of food are now being seriously questioned.

The United States can grow enough food to keep going, and food industry leaders are loud in their praises of the way the Department of Agriculture under Secretary Claude R. Wickard has moved rapidly and effectively to increase all food production goals.

Where the shortages come in are not from lack of planting, breeding, harvest or slaughter of herd and crop. The causes are completely indirect.

Primarily, the food processors face the same shortages that face all industry — a lack of manpower to gather and ship and clean and pack and can and dry and freeze the foods you eat. Unless this manpower problem can be licked next year, people might go hungry.

Secondarily, there will be a shortage of food conveniences. There won't be the abundance of food in the particular containers you may have been used to.

There will be no shortage of beans, for instance. You will be able to buy dried beans by the peck or bushel. But there won't be as many prepared baked beans as there used to be. There won't be as many tin cans of baked beans, not because of the shortage of beans, but because of the shortage of tin cans.

As a substitute, there are offered frozen baked beans or baked beans in glass jars. But there won't be as many glass jars.

—MACHINERY LACKING—

There is no shortage of glass, but there is a shortage of the special type of closing machines necessary to handle glass jars automatically, and there is a further shortage of rubber rings and closures for sealing the glass jars and protecting their contents.

Here are where your food shortages will come in 1943—not in the foods themselves but in their containers and the methods of getting them to you.

Faced by this situation, the patriotic thing for the good housewife to do is to buy no more canned goods than her family can use and to buy only as her family needs.

Rationing of canned and other processed foods is perhaps inevitable for 1944, maybe sooner, to insure a fair distribution. Buying ahead won't help, for as in the case with sugar, everyone will have to declare existing stocks on the pantry shelf in order to get ration allowances.

VENISON BOOTLEGGERS
(Marinette Eagle-Star)

Menominee and Delta counties are not alone in wrestling with the problem of combatting deer slayers who are bootlegging venison to points south of here, according to current reports. Marinette county also has a problem that apparently deserves greater attention from the conservation department than one conservation warden can give.

Earlier in the year there was good reason to believe that several deer slayers were operating in the Crivitz area where they were slaughtering deer to meet the demands of a Chicago market. In recent weeks the venison bootleggers have turned to another section of the county and are reported to be killing as many as two and three deer a day to supply the market.

A Vilas county man carried on such illegal operations for months before he was finally caught with the carcasses of several deer in his car. His arrest was accidental and no particular credit to the conservation department. However, the department will get full credit if it sends more conservation wardens into this or any other area where reports persist that venison bootleggers are operating. The only way to stop this bootlegging is to make a concentrated effort. The department owes it to hunters who abide by the law to make every effort to arrest the violators

GOOD MORNING!

—Says THE BUGLER—

STILL CONTROVERSIAL — The rapid development and recognition of organized labor in recent years is no new story, yet its effect on industry is something hitherto largely confined to the large industrial centers. Upper Michigan people have had little personal contact either with organized labor or its representatives, even including the dark year of 1937 in CIO history in our state. It's true our lumber and mining and other industries had their labor difficulties. But agreements were signed, production continued, Henry Ford called off the Bennett boys, and feudin' of the hillbilly period in labor history is now largely a thing of the past. Yet the subject continues to be a controversial one for those whose contact with labor and management is largely through public print.

THIS IS NO DEFENSE of labor, which has shown itself entirely capable of its own defense. Green and the American Federation of Labor go on much as they have in the past, while the upstart John L. Lewis and the CIO apparently have both gone through an embarrassing growing pains transition—with Lewis as one of the big pains now nearly eliminated. And John Q. Citizen, who used to view with alarm, can now take the cooperative effort of labor and management without those sinking feelings that once gripped him.

YET EVEN TODAY, let an unauthorized wildcat strike tie up a defense plant for a few hours and the public wailing wall is in full use again. The Bugler believes the thought in this question should be given consideration "What would be our wartime rate of production be, without working agreements between labor and industry?" Today, under these agreements, the two patriotically work together, obtaining the highest rate of production the world has ever known. And less time is lost on those lamentable wildcat strikes than is lost through sickness or industrial accidents. Or the war effort delayed less, say, than through the stubbornly inept silver policy saddled upon the country by a group of western senators.

BUT THE BUGLER had started out to tell you how, right here in Escanaba, there is a new and big example of the vital part organized labor is playing in the war effort. Somehow he got tangled up with a lot of words in those opening paragraphs, but they will help in giving some background for what's to follow.

RUMOR CLINIC — Some few weeks ago The Bugler opened a Rumor Clinic paragraph, invited Delta county readers to submit the latest bit of tongue-wagging they had heard. The Bugler said he would dig for the facts, expose the rumor in all its Axis origin. Well, apparently no one heard the rumor The Bugler and other boys on the staff heard bruited about Escanaba streets. It was to the effect that men seeking employment on the dock project were being denied work because they couldn't pay cash on the line union fees and dues. The rumored figure went as high as $100, $125—even $150. It was a ripe piece of Hitleresque tripe if untrue—disgraceful if true. The Bugler decided to find out, and with the moral support of a fellow worker went to beard the union lions in their dens.

UNION LEADERS don't have dens, they don't wear beards by which they can be bearded, and least of all they don't roar — much. At least that was The Bugler's experience of the afternoon. We talked with three business representatives of three unions, missed a fourth but were given every cooperation in our reportorial efforts by the courteous lady in his office. And incidentally, those union offices were built for use, not for effect on the public. No conference rooms were hidden away at the back, and when we talked with the business representatives we leaned on the desks out in front like the guys who are applying for work on the dock.

CANDIDLY WE TOLD the union representatives of the rumors we had heard, and frankly (but emphatically) they laid their union cards on the table as it were and gave us the low down. Lowest initiation fee (for common labor) was $15, highest was $54, which includes three months dues. The highest was for the Union of Operating Engineers, whose members make plenty of salary these days. It was explained that fees have been reduced approximately one-half for all unions, compared with what they are down below in the big industrial cities. And when The Bugler mentions union through the rest of this column, he means AF of L, for that's the affiliation of all the locals represented on the dock job.

A FACTUAL STORY covering this side of the union picture has been printed by the Press and by this time should have laid those obnoxious rumors. But The Bugler would like to tell you a little something about the union heads themselves, about those business representatives he met the other day.

THESE MEN are Elles Hunter, business representative of the General Laborers Union; F. A. Mensing, business representative of the Truck Drivers Union (technically it has another name including chauffeurs, teamsters, etc.); Charles A. Pulaska, representative of the Union of Operating Engineers; and Louis Amundsen, business representative of the Carpenters and Joiners local. Hunter complimented the Press when he said: "It's damned funny to see a couple of newspaper men in a union office. Usually they print rumors and plenty of them without checking up."

MENSING LOOKS like the man you'd hire to take over an administrative job in your plant (not that The Bugler has a plant, but maybe you have). He's been in Escanaba before, helped straighten out the coal truckers strike some time back.

* * *

WE MISSED SEEING Amundsen. He was at work down on the project. But we were told he's been secretary of the Carpenters and Joiners local here for many years, was given the assignment to handle labor when the big job came to town.

* * *

CHARLEY PULASKA is a big man, built on the generous lines of Irvin S. Cobb, and in addition bears a facial resemblance to that American wit. "We're here to see there are no strikes on this job," Pulaska declared. He, like the others, talked freely, gave out information without hedging or efforts to cover up. And when we left he called after us: "Make sure you get that dope right—or no more news for you fellows!"

Which is a lot better than refusing to give any information at all and then crabbing because rumors get into print.

Stores To Stay Open On Wednesday Nights

Retail stores of Escanaba will remain open Wednesday evenings, in addition to Saturday evenings, to accommodate workers on the ore docks and various industries, it was announced yesterday after a meeting of the retail merchants division of the Escanaba Chamber of Commerce.

According to the plan agreed upon, the stores will be open from 12 o'clock noon until 9 p. m. on each Wednesday, thereby giving their employes the morning off to compensate for the evening hours of work. This corresponds with store schedules now in effect in Flint, Pontiac and other defense centers.

A single exception will be made, however, on Armistice day, Nov. 11, which falls on Wednesday. On Armistice day, the stores will remain open from 9 a. m. until 12 o'clock noon, and will close for the balance of the day. The Escanaba and Gladstone high schools will meet in their annual football game Armistice day afternoon.

Escanaba stores will be closed also from 8:50 a. m. to 10 a. m. Friday, Oct. 30, to permit the owners and their employees to attend a War Savings rally at the Delft theatre. George C. Whitney, Detroit, executive director of the Michigan Retailers' War Savings committee, will be the principal speaker.

City Manager George E. Bean attended yesterday's meeting of the retail merchants division, and explained what preparations local stores should make for the test blackouts to be ordered in the near future.

Attacks On Our Congressman

We Need Fighters,

Not Only On The Front, But In Congress.

The people of the 11th Congressional District should know by this time that Fred Bradley has been fighting for them, from the very time he was first elected to Congress, through four difficult years. He has taken his job seriously and worked harder than he ever worked in his life. That is why we want you, as a voter, to fight for him in this "Smear-Purge" campaign now being waged against him.

His record, either before or after Pearl Harbor, is an open book. What happened before Pearl Harbor you are well aware of. His enemies, within and without his party, have dragged a fine-tooth comb through the record for many months. It has been discussed and cussed, by first-class debaters, and others. There is nothing new about it.

He was anti-war before Pearl Harbor. He was isolationist in so far as he desired to keep his country out of the furnace of the world conflagration as long as possible. And so were you, if you were a good American.

The district knows that he is Anti-New Deal; that he is opposed to racketeering labor practices and that he does not believe that the government of the United States should force any man who wants a job to join a union against his will.

He has fought your battle at Washington.

He has fought the battle of the man who desires to earn a livelihood without paying tribute.

He has fought the battle of the Union man who claims the right to bargain collectively, to join or not to join the union of his choice.

He has the written endorsement of unions which are affiliated with the CIO, the AFL and independent unions.

He has the opposition of racketeers, of profiteers, of men who would charge for the exercise of the right to work on defense projects.

He has the opposition of the New Dealers who would change this government of ours, who would scrap the Constitution as a relic of "horse and buggy days."

We strongly believe that this district prefers Bradley to somebody who has nothing more to offer than a promise to "go along with the President." Go along where? In a losing war effort? "We are losing this war"—Asst. Secy. of Navy Bard. "We are losing this war"—Gen. Brehon Somervell, Chief of Supply, A. V. S. "We can lose this war"—Elmer Davis, Director, Office of War Information.

"Let Us Start To Win The War", is Bradley's Slogan

Congress is full of similar "go alongs." We need fewer "yes" men in Washington and more forthright helpers and leaders who have something more to contribute to the war effort than spineless compliance with every suggestion that emanates from the administration high command. Fighters, not yessers, will win this war.

This district, as a rebuke to these outsiders, these smear-and-purge artists who would destroy our representative government by denying you the right to select your Congressman, and would do it for you, should for these very reasons give Bradley an overwhelming vote on November 3rd.

PLANNING MEET WILL BE HELD

Conference Is Scheduled for Escanaba On November 5

The national resources committee and the state planning commission will hold three conferences in the Upper Peninsula during November in an endeavor to learn economic and social conditions which will aid in drawing up projects for post-war development of the northern lakes states region.

The conferences are scheduled for Newberry, Nov. 4; Escanaba, Nov. 5, and Iron River, Nov. 6. Each will open at 10 a. m. and continue until 4:30 p. m., recessing for luncheon at noon.

L. R. Schoenmann, Michigan chairman of the northern lakes states regional commission; George Ross, director of the state planning commission, and Paul Middleton, councilor of the United States planning board, will be the main speakers at morning sessions.

Afternoons will be given over to round-table discussion relating to agriculture, forestry, recreation, mining, business, transportation and government problems in each area of the Peninsula. County boards, city councils, village boards, chambers of commerce, press, planning commissions, conservation and forestry groups and civic clubs are invited to send delegates to each meeting.

Purpose of these conferences is a desire on the part of the national resources committee to study conditions in the Peninsula and to prepare a program that will make the wisest use of available labor on the most beneficial projects in the post-war period.

The national resources committee will meet in Madison, Wis., Nov. 9, to begin study of information obtained in the northern lakes states region, an area of 57,000,000 acres in 86 counties in northern Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota.

Beware These Slick War-Born Rackets!

BY TOM WOLF
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

New York—An automobile was recently pushed into a Long Island filling station. "Guess I'm out of gas," the motorist told the proprietor. When an inspection of his tank proved it to be bone dry, he ordered it filled up.

The station owner asked for his gas ration book. The motorist had left it at home. The proprietor was sorry, but adamant. No tickee, no gassee. The motorist then asked for some water.

As the astounded proprietor watched, the motorist filled his tank with water, took two pills from his vest pocket, dropped them in, climbed into his car and started the motor.

ONE BORN EVERY MINUTE

The station owner could hardly believe his popping eyes. He ran up to the slowly departing motorist and begged for the secret. Five minutes later he had purchased two of the magic "gas pills' for $5 each—hereby joining the ever-growing list of suckers being taken in by an ever-growing list of new, war-born rackets.

The motorist's "empty" gas tank, needless to say, had a false bottom, full of gas. The water and magic capsules were merely the confidence man's equipment and had nothing whatsoever to do with making the "gasless' car run.

According to the National Better Business Bureau, clearing house for information on business rackets of all kinds, war-born shortages and regulations have played right into the hands of racketeers, whose principle stock in trade is public confusion or ignorance.

Salesmen of "gasoline pills" have put to shame the old snake-oil barkers, says the BBB, which warns that this popular confidence game will be on the increase as gas rationing becomes nationwide.

Tires have come in for their share of racketeer attention. One of the 75 local bureaus affiliated with the National BBB reported a tire scheme whereby old casings were put into hot molds and "cooked" until what looked like new treads appeared. Repainted, the casings looked good, and were—for a couple of hundred miles.

CIVILIAN DEFENSE IS CROOK'S PARADISE

Civilian defense has been an especially fruitful field for rackets. Although the national Office of Civilian Defense has stated that water is the best home agent for extinguishing fires started by incendiary bombs, many racketeers have reaped fortunes by implying that special equipment was required by law.

In some West Coast communities housewives were canvassed by door-to-door "inspectors" who claimed that all fire extinguishers had to be inspected and filled with a new, anti-incendiary agent. Unwary housewives who let the helpful strangers take their extinguishers "to the factory for filling" never saw either the man or the extinguisher again.

One enterprising confidence man visited some outlying southern communities with an expensive "air raid kit" which he sold to scores of unsuspecting householders under the threat of a "$25 fine if you don't have this equipment by the time of the next air raid test." A call to local police or civilian defense headquarters would have exposed this fraud.

A similar racket, which first appeared in New England, is based on the scarcity of consumer goods. The racketeer would turn up at the front door and announce that he was checking household appliances in connection with the government's "Make 'Em Last" campaign.

After tinkering with refrigerator or radio or vacuum cleaner, he would announce that a repair was needed which could not be made on the premises. If the housewife was unwary enough to let him "drive it down to the shop," she would find herself minus a refrigerator but plus some experience with crooks.

BE SURE YOU KNOW YOUR DEALER

Which all goes to show, says the National Better Business Bureau, that it pays to deal with tradesmen who are known in your community.

Some racketeers have milked the innocent by falsely implying official Army or Navy sponsorship or connection. Firms with war contracts, or wanting them, have been sold expensive advertising space in journals which gave the impression that, because of their "official" status, they were specially read by service purchasing agents—an impression vehemently denied by both Army and Navy.

"Official flag" solicitors have plagued parents of service men, despite the fact that neither the Army nor Navy has adopted an official flag.

Perhaps most difficult to detect and cruelest of all frauds are those involving patriotic and philanthropic organizations. A few of these have been proven outright frauds—like the non-existent auxiliary corps for which women were recruited and charged money for "uniforms and organization."

More have been so badly managed that almost none of the collected funds ever reached the "cause", while 40 per cent or more went to solicitors as commissions.

How can you protect yourself from these war-born rackets? The National Better Business Bureau would reply with its slogan: "Before you invest, investigate!"

SCRAP NOT COLLECTED

Editor,
Escanaba Daily Press,
Escanaba, Mich.
Dear Editor:

May I have a few lines in regards to this scrap drive. It appears to me to be just a lot of talk and not very much needed. I have at least 1,000 pounds of it here in my yard. I have called one junk yard three times to come after it, and wrote a card to another one, and as yet have seen nobody.

And also may I add I think it our privilege to sell or give it away. Well in my case, I am selling it. So now in my opinion scrap is not needed very badly, but probably will be later on after we have lost a few more warships and many lives. So here's hoping some junk dealer comes for it soon.

School News

High school students have enrolled for the new Victory Program which will soon be under way, directed by W. Johnson, the superintendent. They have a wide variety of courses to choose from, boys studies including Home Farm Production, Aviation, Naval and Army training, and girls, Community training and Nursing. Physical training in the military manner will be adopted in gym classes.

The students of the high school are sponsoring a school fair to be held November 5 and 6. Several interesting activities are under way and everyone one is urged to attend.

All pupils are arranging to take extra courses along with their present subjects, which also are being tuned up to the war effort. English classes have courses in Civics to study about home products; the Agricultural class puts more stress on farming and farm animals; in mathematics, more varieties of arthimetic are being taken and all are studiously doing their share in the all-out war effort.

PRICE OF DEER MEAT TOO HIGH

Two Spalding Men Appeal From $100 Fines for Illegal Kill

Standing mute on their hearing on a charge of killing deer illegally, two Spalding men, Roy Harris and Theodore Fazer, had pleas of guilty entered for them by Menominee Justice Joseph A. Bottkol yesterday afternoon and were ordered to pay fines of $100 and costs of $6.85 each or go to jail for 90 days.

Their hunting licenses were revoked for three years as a part of the sentence.

Counsel for the two men said an appeal to circuit court would be taken, and the men are now at liberty on bond. The appeal apparently will be for the purpose of seeking a reduction in the amount of the fine, the maximum under the law.

D. H. Raess, district conservation supervisor of Escanaba, said the arresting officers testified briefly at the hearing before arraignment of the two men. Both Harris and Fazer had been arrested for headlighting deer in 1937 but were acquitted by a Spalding jury.

Harris, a Spalding garage man, and Fazer, federal soil conservation officer at Stephenson, were arrested Thursday morning with a buck deer in their car. Conservation officers in court yesterday described how they had heard shots the night before, had waited all night in the brush rather than arrest the men in a camp for which they had no search warrant, and then picked them up in the morning when they started to drive away.

Melstrand

Melstrand—Mr. and Mrs. Jackson McClary are living at Cadillac.

Reverend and Mrs. J. D. Barnard and daughter and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Johnson of Escanaba attended a meeting at the Shingleton church on Sunday evening at which Reverend Barnard assisted.

Snow fell on Sunday and again on Monday, covering the ground with several inches and making an excellent tracking snow.

The 4-H Club will hold at Hallowe'en party at the Melstrand school house on Thursday evening. The Van Meer and Melstrand school children will hold their parties on Friday and Saturday evening. Frank Berry, teacher, is sponsoring the parties.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bower attended church at Shingleton, Sunday evening as did Mr. and Mrs. E. Johnson.

Joe Chartrand who has been employed at the Raco airport has returned to his home here.

Frank D. Stebbins and son Franklin who were pheasant hunting in Lower Michigan returned to their home here.

Prayer Services will be held at the Melstrand school house on Tuesday evening, November 3.

"Bee" For Church Work

Melstrand—Who says that the world is too busy to pause for good works today? A week or so ago men and women from Melstrand and Van Meer got together at a "bee" and worked on the little Presbyterian chapel at Van Meer. While the men worked on the church the women folks prepared a fine dinner. Reverend John Hamel is the missionary worker in charge of this area and Luke Watson is the local worker.

Judge for Yourself

As a service to Michigan voters, the State Bar of Michigan has released the following statements for, and against, the three proposals which appear on the November ballot. The statements were prepared by lawyers representing each side of each question. The State Bar itself has not taken a position on any of the proposals.

PROPOSAL NO. 3

FOR

Michigan voters should put the Milk Marketing Act into effect by voting "yes" on referendum No. 3, for the following reasons:

1.—It provides an impartial tribunal where producers, consumers and dealers can appear and air their grievances regarding producing and marketing milk.

2—The Act does not affect the production and marketing of milk used for manufacturing purposes, but only milk sold in fluid form, and the law is designed to operate only in major milk markets of the state. The expense of enforcement of the Act is borne entirely by the producers and distributors in the area in which the law functions, without expense or trouble to the other producers and distributors in the state.

3—It eliminates the only errors found in the former milk marketing law by the Michigan Supreme Court.

4—Milk represents approximately one-third of the total agricultural income of the state, and unless this law is approved by voters, there will be neither state nor federal regulation due to the fact that there is not sufficient milk shipped in interstate commerce to permit federal control under the Agricultural Administration Act. Some twenty states have repeatedly re-enacted similar milk control laws. Detroit is the only large city in the United States marketing fluid milk without state or federal regulation.

5—It prevents price wars which force producers to accept low prices for their product, resulting in bankruptcy of local dealers who do not do business on a nation-wide scale, and are unable to successfully resist unfair competition for long periods. Such a price war occurred in Detroit in 1939, resulting in sixteen dealers being forced out of business, with a loss of thousands of dollars to milk producers.

Vote YES on Proposal No. 1

AGAINST

The proposed law, if the voters approve it, will create another bureau, consisting of innumerable community marketing committees, well salaried out of charges levied against the poundage of milk, made up of local dairy representatives interested in killing off new competition and empowered to make the recommendations upon the basis of which the marketing board head the the organization will adopt rules fixing the prices of milk and regulating the activities of every person who has anything to do with the business, from milking the cow to handling the milk across the counter or setting it on the doorstep.

This power to fix prices and make rules having force of law for the various communities obviously means a power to so word the rules that geographical limitations, or financial requirements, or other requirements, or other notional restrictions, can be used in the name of "health" to kill competition.

But the increased burdens upon farmers, the added army of political appointees to be supported, the higher prices that will be charged consumers, the smaller sales of bottled milk for children of the cities, and the resulting fall in total income to dairy communities for purchase of supplies from local merchants—all of them good reasons for voting NO, are yet none of them the most important reason.

The principal reason for voting NO on the Milk Marketing Referendum is the fact that, if approved, this law would become, by consent of the voters themselves, the opening wedge by which the American system of equal opportunity would soon be entirely destroyed. A few great national monopolies, each invited in some field of economic empire to use political intrigue for controlling through local boards in the several states all competition throughout the nation, would soon take from all persons their liberty to choose their own means of livelihood.

Vote NO on Proposal No. 3

Harry F. Kelly has made his position clear on these important issues:

On Efficiency . . .

"If I am elected Governor, I shall see that no unnecessary manpower is wasted in government while Michigan pleads for manpower in industry and on farms during these critical days."

On Appointees . .

"I consider the appointive power as the most solemn obligation of the Governor to the people. The only yardstick I will employ in choosing persons for positions of trust will be efficiency, honesty and integrity."

On Small Business

"I shall seek to remove the yoke gradually crushing small business, by eliminating the needless State governmental interferences now imposed upon it. I shall enlist the good judgment of small business representatives in the administration of State affairs."

On Defense . . . .

"If I take over the duties of Governor, politics, red-tape and delay in Civilian Defense will end. Michigan will be properly prepared to meet not only the emergency of the day but also the possible emergencies that may arise tomorrow."

On Labor . . . . .

"Organized labor is necessary in a time of peace; it is doubly necessary in the days of war; it will be trebly necessary in the reconstruction days to follow. I shall always assist in seeing to it that the rights of the laboring man and woman are protected."

On Government . .

"I contend that the Governor owes a very definite duty to every political subdivision of his State; that every one of Michigan's 83 counties deserves from its Governor an awareness of its individual problems and a willingness to help in their successful solution."

Helmet Appeal Meets Instant Public Response

The response to the request for helmets for the Coast Guard issued Sunday has been very gratifying it was announced yesterday.

There have been some offers of yarn at Red Cross Headquarters, coupled with offers to knit if yarn were made available. Every effort will be made to combine these services if such information is proffered. Those wishing to assist are asked to call 1670.

The directions for making the helmets, released by Red Cross headquarters for those who wish to help in answering this appeal are given as follows:

HELMET
(For Service Men)

Equipment Needed:

Yarn: 5 ozs. 4/8 sweater yarn, dark navy blue.

Needles: 4 double-pointed needles to fit the Red Cross Needle Gauge for beanies.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR MAKING

Using two needles, cast on 52 sts. for front. K 2, P 2 for 7½ inches. Leave stitches on needles.

Using two needles, cast on 48 sts. for back. K 2, P 2 for 7½ inches.

Divide these 100 sts. on three needles, putting 36 sts. from the front piece on 1st needle and 32 sts. each on 2nd and 3rd needles. K 2, P 2 in rounds for 6".

In the next round, starting with 1st needle, K 2, P 2 for 14 sts. (ending with K 2). Bind off 22 sts. This makes the opening in center of front for the face. Work in pattern around to bound-off stitches. Work back and forth on the 78 sts. as follows:

1st row: K 1, P 1. * K 2, P 2. Repeat from * to last 4 sts. K 2, P 1, K 1.

2nd row: * K 2, P 2. Repeat from * to last 2 sts. K 2.

(This ensures a knit stitch at edge of opening to prevent curling.)

Repeat the 1st and 2nd rows 5 times (12 rows in all) casting on 22 sts. at the end of last row opposite those cast off.

Divide stitches on three needles as originally. Continue working in rounds in pattern for 4".

Shape for crown as follows:

1st round: * K 18, K 2 together. Repeat from * to end of round.

2nd and alternate rounds: Knit plain.

3rd round: * K 17, K 2 together. Repeat from * to end of round.

5th round: * K 16, K 2 together. Repeat from * to end of round.

Continue in this manner, decreasing in every alternate row until 25 sts. remain. Break off the wool (leaving an end of about 6 inches) and run the end through the remaining stitches. Draw up and fasten securely, darning in well on wrong side.

Press top part with damp cloth and warm iron.

Christ Mitchell and Peter Gerasimos of Chicago have established their residence in Escanaba for the duration of the ore docks construction period.

Mrs. Joseph Perron, jr., and Mrs. Charles Wood returned Tuesday night from Ishpeming where they attended the funeral of their cousin, Mrs. Fred Fredette.

Miss Constance Tomlinson Bride Of Ensign Karas

A New York wedding of wide interest here is that of Miss Constance Patricia Tomlinson, daughter of Mrs. Beatrice Tomlinson of New York City, and Ensign Frank Joseph Karas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Karas, of 815 South Eleventh street, which took place on Wednesday, October 28.

The ceremony was solemnized at 5:30 o'clock in the Church of the Transfiguration.

Ensign Karas and his bride who left New York following the ceremony enroute to the west coast, are expected here tonight and will spend a part of their honeymoon in the vicinity of Escanaba.

Ensign Karas, who has just completed his special course at the United States Naval Reserve Midshipmen's School in New York City, is a graduate of Escanaba high school and received his degree from Michigan State college.

We want to do something now, so that the society of the future will not have to be an armed camp.

Average Home Provides Many Hospital Items

The published list of hospital items is now complete, and it is believed, Mrs. E. J. MacMartin, Red Cross production chairman, announced yesterday, that from the swift response, that a large shipment can be sent from this county.

There is much usable material available from the average home. Yardage for some larger items must naturally be purchased in bolts by the better financed units. In either case, definiteness of time and quantity is a must. Each Chapter is required to fill out a form indicating how much of each item can be furnished and at what time. Public response must therefore be definite and immediate. An excellent beginning has already been made.

Here are some items which the average home can help to furnish almost without cost:

For fracture pillow, 10 by 11½ inches—Casings: ten-pound sugar sacks, a little narrower, filled with feathers, mattress-filler or other dustless material.

Covers—Strong parts of worn bed sheets; those "guest towels" and those "runners" that have been put away so long.

For chair cushions, 19 by 19 inches, open edge taped; casing, 18 by 18 inches — Any strong white material. Filling same as for fracture pillows, old cotton from comforters will do, or mattress pads; covers—a plain, bright color, perhaps from the good parts of faded draperies.

Men's bed jackets, for treating cases where the windows must be open—the lower part of discarded bathrobes or lounging robes will answer. Bring in the whole robe. We need two from every square block.

Women's bed jackets—same as above only of lighter material.

Pneumonia jackets — Outing flannel garments not too closely worn. Filler, a flat cotton-bat. Such a contribution would be very helpful.

Bed-pan covers, in great quantity, 27 by 27 inches or larger. Ticket, unbleached muslin, crash.

Knitted items for afghans, knee bands, shoulderettes, beanies, sweaters, used for arthritis, pneumonia, gas cases.

Card table covers—Many homes can spare these.

EGG SALVAGE

You can cook egg yolks (leftovers) this way: Drop the yolks carefully to prevent them from separating, into water just below the boiling point. Cover and simmer 15 minutes. Cool and use them diced in salads, escalloped blends or sauces, and pressed through a sieve they give an ornate touch to salads, soups or creamed dishes. Added to sandwich mixtures they step up the iron content for the school lunches.

Two Scholarship Students Are At Michigan State

East Lansing, Mich., Oct. 28—Among the 64 freshman students attending Michigan State college on alumni scholarships are two from Escanaba, according to Glenn O. Stewart, director of alumni relations. The two students are Edward Gauthier, who is studying police administration, and William Baum, a major in hotel administration.

Every year the college alumni association nominates for scholarships a group of outstanding students from accredited high schools in each of the 32 senatorial districts in the state. Competitive examinations are given to the candidates by a faculty committee and one scholarship is granted in each district. Additional scholarships numbering 32 are distributed among those areas most heavily populated.

The alumni scholarships represent a waiver of tuition by the college and are first awarded for one year. They may be kept for four years providing the student maintains a 1.6 scholastic average.

DEMOCRATIC WOMEN'S LUNCHEON

To All Democratic Women Voters in Delta County:

You are cordially invited to attend a luncheon at the Sherman Hotel, Saturday, October 31st, at 12:00 o'clock noon. As you will be guests of U. S. Senator Prentiss M. Brown, Governor Van Wagoner, and Paul Lincoln Adams, candidate for Congress, this luncheon will be complimentary.

It has been impossible for me to contact all of you women voters personally, because I have been trying to conserve tires and gasoline. Please consider this a PERSONAL invitation!

All registered women Democratic voters are urged to attend this luncheon. The menu is good. John Fagan, an attorney from Marquette, will discuss, very briefly, the importance of women's votes at this wartime election—and the necessity for supporting our Commander-in-Chief to the fullest possible extent.

Again, I urge you Democratic women to come and enjoy this luncheon. If you plan on attending and wish to bring a friend, or friends, drop me a note at my home address, 412 South 16th Street, or phone me at 1947, and I'll make the necessary reservations. Don't forget the date—October 31st at 12:00 noon. I'll be looking forward to seeing you and meeting you all personally.

Sincerely,

DEMOCRATIC STATE CENTRAL COMMITTEE

Irene Gallagher,
Chairman Luncheon Committee.

Ellen Stenlund Bride, Wedding On October 24

Miss Ellen Stenlund, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Stenlund of Ensign and Andrew Bannister of Rapid River, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Bannister, of Detroit, were united in marriage at a ceremony performed Saturday morning, October 24, at 11:30 o'clock, at the Swedish Lutheran church in Gladstone.

The service was read by Rev. J. Otto Magnuson.

Attending the couple were Miss Catherine Stenlund and Robert Rentscheler.

The bride wore a floor length gown of blue taffeta with a fitted bodice and full skirt and a fingertip veil gathered to a tiara of seed pearls. She carried blue and white pompons with white shower ribbons, and, as her only ornament, she wore the pearl necklace which her mother wore at her wedding twenty-four years ago.

The bridesmaid's gown was of blue chiffon and her flowers were pink and white pompons.

Mrs. Stenlund wore a gray crepe dress for the wedding, and Mrs. Bannister was dressed in navy blue crepe.

A wedding dinner at the home of the bride's parents followed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Bannister will make their home in Rapid River.

Guests at the wedding included Mrs. Arnold Turan, of Isabella, and Mrs. Ira Bannister, Miss Catherine Stenlund and Mrs. Adolph Vietzi, of Detroit.

WETMORE FLIER HERO IN EGYPT

Capt. Thomas W. Clark Downs Axis Planes In Desert Battle

Munising, Mich., Oct. 28 (AP)—Capt. Thomas W. Clark, 25-year-old Army Air Corps pilot who brought down two enemy planes Tuesday in aerial fighting over the African desert, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Clark, Wetmore.

Capt. Clark was graduated from Munising high school in 1935 and from Michigan State college four years later. He planned to attend the Universty of Michigan law school, but in 1940 joined the Army Air Corps and was commissioned March 17, 1941.

He married Miss Kathleen E. O'Manney, of Suffield, Conn., on June 27 of this year, and three days later was sent to the Army Air Force headquarters in the middle east. His wife resides in Suffield.

Capt. Clark has two brothers in the army, Lieut. John B. Clark, who is serving at Fort Knox, Ky., and Sgt. William Clark, stationed at Camp Livington, La.

The Friendship Circle met at the home of Mrs. Walter Cramer, Wednesday afternoon.

Alger Scrap Drive Set For Saturday

Munising, Oct. 28—A scrap drive will be made in Alger county on Saturday, October 31, the Alger county salvage committee has announced. Trucks will cover the roads and pick up material througout the entire county. To get ready for this final drive befor snow comes, all scrap should be gathered up and placed near the road where it can be easily loaded into the trucks. Old car bodies and like material should be knocked to pieces and the wood torn or burned out of them. Rags and rubber will also be taken on this drive.

A price of 35 cents per 100 pounds will be paid for mixed scrap, one-half cent per pound for rubber, and 75 cents per 100 pounds for rags. The money received from the sale of donated material will be divided between the USO and the Red Cross.

County salvage depots have been set up at Cox's garage in Munising, and Vern Richmond at Chatham for those who wish to haul their own scrap.

By collecting all of the scrap you can, and getting others to do the same, you are helping to win the war.

Cancer Consultant Talks In Munising

Munising, Oct. 28—Dr. F. L. Rector, cancer consultant of the Michigan department of health, will speak to the Munising residents who are interested in cancer, its prevention and measures of control. His lecture will be held at the Mather high auditorium from 2:30 until 3 o'clock on Friday. Following the lecture he will answer any questions about the subject in an open discussion.

Dr. Rector is also cancer consultant for the Michigan State Medical Society. For eleven years before taking over his present position he was midwestern field representative of the American Society for the Control of Cancer. He is an authority on cancer and modern methods of treatment and prevention of it. This lecture is part of a series during a five week lecture tour through the Upper Peninsula.

MUNISING BRIEFS

Funeral Service

Service was held in the home at Van's Harbor Friday at 1:30 p. m. for Floyd Willis, seven months old twin son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Miller, who died at the Shaw hospital, Manistique Wednesday, after a very short illness with lobar pneumonia. The Rev. P. S. Nestander of the Zion Lutheran church of Manistique officiated. Mrs. Walter Kreshefske and Mrs. Heafield sang "He Leadeth Me" before the brief comforting message was delivered by the minister who also sang before the closing prayer. Burial conducted by the local pastor of Brevort was made later in the afternoon.

As the other twin boy was seriously ill at the time Dr. and Mrs. John A. Lown took it over to the clinic at Marquette following the funeral service and improvement in its condition is reported.

BY BERNARD S. O'HARA

New York, Oct. 28 (AP)—The stock market today continued the reactionary swing which got into motion Tuesday and various leaders closed fractions to around a point lower.

The Associated Press 60-stock average had a closing decline of .2 of a point at 39.6. Of the 772 stocks traded 428 were down, 151 advanced and 193 were unchanged.

Transactions totalled 496,950 shares, smallest in more than a week, and compared with 628,640 yesterday.

U. S. Steel, Du Pont, Allied Chemical and J. C. Penney were a point or more under previous finals at the end. Smaller declines were registered by Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, Western Union, Consolidated Edison, Phelps-Dodge, Union Carbide, Eastman Kodak, Standard Oil (N. J.) and Texas Co.

Crucible Steel rose 1½ to a new year's high and the preferred picked up 1 7-8. U. S. Leather "A" was modestly higher on a dividend declaration.

Rails varied only slightly excepting Union Pacific was bid up 7-8.

In the curb Humble Oil and Aluminum of America each slid off a point or more and fractionally down were Glen Alden Coal, Cities Service and American Cyanamid. Pittsburgh Plate Glass and United Gas edged a little higher. Transfers here were 89,595 shares against 101,330 the day before.

New York, Oct. 28 (AP)—In the slowest session in two months, the bond market engaged in a series of sidewise movements today that left prices basically unchanged from the preceding session.

Some rails advanced small fractions; others declined as much or more and the same confused pattern prevailed for the most part among industrials, utilities, low yields and the foreign group.

U. S. governmetns were almost at a standstill on the stock exchange and over the counter as the investment machinery took stock of affairs after the treasury's $2,000,000,000 one-year loan offering of Monday and Tuesday.

Sales fell to $6,750,500, par value, the smallest total for a full session since late in August. Tuesday's turnover was $9,462,700. The Associated Press averages showed only slight changes in any group.

Ending a bit ahead were Burlington 4½s at 66 3-8, North Western general mortgage 5s at 33¼, Rock Island refunding 4s at 17 5-8, Columbia Gas 5s of '61 at 88¼, Rio Grande Western 4s at 19¾ and Great Northern 3¾s at 74½.

Unchanged to a little lower were Illinois Central 4¾s, International Great Northern 6s, Kansas City Southern 3s, Missouri Pacific 5s of '77, New York Central 4½s, Northern Pacific 6s, Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron 5s and St. Louis-San Francisco 4½s.

Several U. S. Steel issues, normally inactive, moved up minor fractions after the calling for early redemption of some issues not due for several years.

Australia 5s dipped a major fraction but little change was shown by most foreign loans. Some Mexican loans gained fractionally.

DAY'S MARKETS IN BRIEF

New York, Oct. 28 (AP)—

Stocks: Lower; leaders extend reaction.

Bonds: Mixed; some low-priced rails in supply.

Cotton: Steady; covering and New Orleans buying.

Chicago:

Wheat: Lower in sympathy with rye.

Corn: Lower; hedging sales.

Cattle: Steers, yearlings steady to storng.

Hogs: Steady to 10 higher; top $14.90.

WITH SID GORDON

COUNTRY ADVICE FOR MARRIED FOLKS

There are many married couples who hurt one another too much when they drive through the country. I wouldn't be surprised if our 35 miles an hour will stop many a rift among married folks.

I do not know who is the more guilty, the husband or the wife. Having done a great deal of research in the matter and examined my own guilty conscience I am prepared to conduct a Gordon poll in your block at any time and prove that the wife is to blame.

I am also prepared to prove that, in the next block, the husband is to blame. In other words, married folks who spoil either the wife's pleasure on a drive in the country, or vice versa, will run about 50-50 as to sex.

Take George's case for instance. George is a good provider. Not only does he buy the groceries in ample qualities but he has a nice home, fine children and a wife of whom he is rather proud.

He is more proud of his wife and family than he is of the $1,500 car he drives. He is glad to take them out in the country for a drive, when the wife likes to get away from the housework, for a change.

Fifty or 60 miles an hour is George's idea of the tempo on the drive in the country. The wife sees a beautiful splash of color up ahead in the woods. She not only wants to teach the youngsters to admire the beauty of nature but she wants to enjoy it herself.

"Oh, honey," she cries, "let us stop for a moment and enjoy the beautiful view from that hilltop." Does George stop? George merely gives her one quick glance, the needle slows from 60 miles an hour to 50 and momma has had her view of the beautiful hillside.

A pretty stream winds along the valley. Momma loves goldenrod and knows that a mass of yellow flowers will cheer up the living room for several days. "George, honey," she says, "turn down this little road to that bridge, the children and I will pick some of that lovely goldenrod."

The needle drops, drops all the way down from 65 miles an hour to 59 miles an hour. "That hay fever stuff," says George. I'll buy buy some flowers when we get home." Momma sighs, sits back and forgets how nice it would be to look at the goldenrod in the living room and remember the drive which could have been so much more pleasant. George has $1,500 invested in that car, he gets the most out of the car and the kids get the least out of the trip.

If momma is one of the hurry up, driving kind and George loves the country, he doesn't dare stop and look at the old mill site, the trout stream or judge the Herefords fattening in the alfalfa.

If papa or momma are not in agreement on the pausing here and the stepping there, a cross-country trip can be just plain torture for the one who wishes to stop, look and listen once in awhile.

Many a beautiful trip has been ruined, all the way to California, by either the man or the woman who will not allow the other to take a little time out, to look at an interesting city or a beautiful spot on, or near, the highway.

The 35-mile-an-hour law is curing me though. I mean curing us, for I am guilty only when I am on the highway and you too can be cured as I was cured. We go along so slowly now that we can stop any place, anytime. We have found that there really are other things to look at, besides the black line on the highway. It may be we will continue to give the other person some sightseeing pleasure with our car, long after the 35-miles-an-hour sign is once again off the roads.

There is only one cure for the partner who always regards a trip as one of only mileage and I hate very much to give you the recipe. I call it the rowboat cure.

Put him in a rowboat, get in that rowboat and make him row, row, row. Then you can see the sights at your leisure. I hate that cure. As I was putting tannic acid on my poor blistered hands, who could blame me when I gently chastised her for dragging that anchor all the day long, unknown to me. Well, she can't throw an anchor out behind the car, thank goodness!

Berlin News "Leaks" Are Usually False

By JEAN GRAFFIS
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

Mad as a hornet, Adolf Hitler paced the aisles of his luxurious General Headquarters train which is secreted under heavy camouflage deep in a Lithuanian forest.

He had decided to mete out Nazi justice for the colossal failure of German armies before Leningrad, Stalingrad, Mozdok and Cairo. So he barked out orders:

"Arrest Field Marshal Fedor von Bock!" (Original commander of Nazi forces before Stalingrad.)

"Demand the resignations of Colonel General Franz Halder!" (Chief of staff of the High Command.)

"And of Field Marshal Wilhelm List, too!" (He vainly tried to take Stalingrad after von Bock failed.)

"Place under surveillance Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel!" (Chief of the German Supreme Command.)

"The same for Marshal Erwin Rommel!"

All of which, fact or fancy, has made spicy reading to victory-hungry Americans and Britons lately. With Hitler himself bouncing five topnotch generals out of the High Command, the Nazi crackup and our day of retribution would seem nearer.

But war-wise American readers should not gulp too hastily to swallow stories like these. In the first place, any news emanating from Germany must be suspect. It couldn't very well get out unless Joseph Goebbels wanted it out.

Remember, Goebbels invented and perfected the "war of nerves" technique, one phase of which is to issue false stories of Nazi German dissension in order to promote enemy overconfidence and carelessness.

In such cases, a Propaganda Ministry contact man is delegated to "whisper" the information "confidentially" to the Berlin correspondent of a newspaper located in a neutral country. The story then is credited to a "usually reliable source."

Another point to be remembered is that despite earlier reported "purges" by Hitler of his general staff, the "outcast" military leaders always have popped up in later campaign with major assignments.

NOT EVEN HITLER CAN PLAY WITH ARMY

Still more important is the fact that Hitler, regardless of his moral vacuum, does have a distinct genius for picking the right man for the right spot. It is obvious from Nazi history that Der Fuehrer does not make a habit of cashiering the men of ability whom he knows he must have to win.

Hitler can, however, and often does, shift his key men around in an effort to obtain better results when failure looms. While it is extremely doubtful that he would fire his generals outright, it is quite probable that he would try switching them, seeking a working combination.

Most important of all, in assessing a purge story of this character, is the consideration which must be given the German High Command itself.

That group of military geniuses is nobody's plaything, not even Hitler's. It is a proud group of which the common people are proud, and if Hitler went too far with an army purge, he would count on sympathy from no one but his own SS divisions. It may be seriously questioned whether the SS could take care of its end in a quarrel of this kind.

On the same grounds, reports that Gen. Alfred Jodl was named to replace Halder may be questioned. Jodl is regarded by regular army men as a climber who got where he is by hanging onto Hitler's coat tail.

He may be a good military theoretician but he has never been able to break into the high army clique. It's hard to believe the army would tolerate him now. Oppositely, Jodl is the best candidate of all for real purging, since his position depends wholly on Hitler's whim.

Without overlooking the strain that is surely growing within Germany's military and economic system, this is what may have happened in fact at that lonely eyrie of Hitler's:

He did get mad enough to chew carpets and may have threatened to behead a couple dozen generals. But after reflection, he recalled that (1) he must not antagonize the army and (2) he must preserve these generals for further use in a still-active war.

So he called in the generals, suggested that by switching around or taking brief vacations, they might freshen their outlook and start pitching fireballs to the enemy again.

"IT'S A PERFECT SPOT FOR SOME NERVE-WAR"

The generals, conscious of their own failure, agreed. Then, as they all quaffed from the wassail bowl, wily Joseph Goebbels edged into the circle with another proposition.

"It's a perfect spot for some nerve-war," he said. "Let's tell the enemy a big purge is on. It will bloat them with overconfidence; make their workers sloppy and careless. And we don't have to let the German people know anything about any of it."

And thus, perhaps, was it done.

In October, 1941, all foreign correspondents in Berlin were called to the Propaganda Ministerium to hear Reich Press Chief Diettrich tell how the Russian army and air force had been annihilated and no longer existed as a fighting unit.

For that speech, Diettrich was flown to Berlin direct from Hitler's GHQ. The whole thing had been hatched up in the bough-covered train on a blind siding where Hitler, far from the front lines, is still playing Napoleon. Every German official of any standing at all knew that Diettrich's story was a typical phony, designed to cast despair over enemy camps.

Eventually Hitler and his generals will break. When that happens, the explosion will be so thunderous that we can't doubt it. Then we can safely disregard anything that Berlin's "usually reliable sources" have to say on the subject.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Chicago, Oct. 28 (AP)—A fresh break in rye prices, which fell almost 3 cents a bushel at one stage to new seasonal lows, depressed the entire grain market today but other cereals lost only fractions.

Despite a late rally due to short covering, rye futures closed 1 7-8 to 2 1-8 cents lower than yesterday, December 61 3-4, and spot prices were quoted off 2½ to 3 cents, although no actual sales were reported.

The drop in rye, which is now 6 cents under last week's best quotations and in some cases about 20 cents below the season's peaks, was blamed on a continuation of stop loss liquidation based partly on the large supply available, slow demand from distillers and virtual stoppage of export business. Trade reports indicated distillers were using mostly corn and wheat in the manufacture of industrial alcohol for war purposes.

Wheat closed ¼ to 5-8 cent lower, December $1.24¾ to $1.24 1-8, May $1.26½ to $1.26 3-8; corn ¼ to ½ down, December 79½, May 84 3-8 to 84½; oats unchanged to ½ off and soybeans 3-4 lower to ¼ higher.

CRACKUP
CHAPTER XVI

You'd look so sweet,
Upon the seat—(if we had another seat!)
Of a bicycle built for two-o-o-o!

Duane Hogan sang that, with interpolation, in a deeply Texan basso as he pedaled in the same rhythm out toward the athletic field. Behind him clung what could have been mistaken for a child. She sat on the rigid package carrier over the fender, her shapely legs held forward so toes dark curls reached hardly up to wouldn't touch the ground. Her his shoulder. She clung to his cadet uniform belt.

"I like it better this way!" she laughed back at his sally. "If we really had a bicycle built for two, I'd have to help pedal!"

"So! You want a man to do all the work!"

"Sure thing!"

"Oughta be a law against women."

"Men would soon repeal it."

"Oh-h-h-h no they wouldn't!"

"Oh-h-h-h yes they would!"

You could cut up thus with Duane Hogan; happily, youthfully; on the rare occasions when you could be alone with him. He never said very much, never talked like some men. But his strength and good humor pervaded his whole life. It was one reason why Blythe loved him. One reason for being frantic because he had never shown any love for her in turn.

"I'm gonna be disgraced if the gang sees me riding a girl's bike," he lamented now. "Towing a girl."

"It was your idea," she reminded him.

"I never could think. Papa always said I ought to be a—"

"So, you admit it!"

"Hush! Or I'll make him buck you off."

"This isn't a horse. This isn't your ranch, either; this is Lincoln boulevard, mister!"

"Nnnn!" He pretended to growl.

Back of their easy banter was the knowledge that each concealed serious thoughts. Duane faced a deadly earnest business of learning to fight in the air. More immediately, he nursed a burning desire to win a football game this week, because his beloved coach and friend, Pop Miller, was in some kind of trouble. Blythe had hinted of that trouble. He thought he understood; Pop wanted to beat State U. again, this time as a flying-field coach. And here he was sick in bed.

When Duane was silent for a block or so, Blythe turned serious too.

"Duane," she asked, surprisingly, "do you have a pistol?"

"Do I—hunh?"

"Please, I'm not joking."

"Sure I have. But why?"

"Never mind. Would you lend it to me?"

"Whatcha gonna shoot? Japs?"

"I am not joking, Duane."

"Okay, then, I'll bring it over. Tonight."

"Thanks so much."

"But I'm still curious. After all, lady, a gun—"

"It's for Pop."

"Pop? . . . What's a gun got to do with winning a game?"

"I—I don't know! But, Duane—please! We're friends, you and Pop and I. You—you better just—trust us. And not say anything."

He considered that, pedaling in powerful, deliberate strides. "Hmm," he murmured. "Where I come from, pistols are used to—to—"

"I know. It scares me, too. But Pop asked me to borrow one. I told you Pop was in trouble, but I don't know enough to tell you what kind."

"You don't say!"

He stopped the bike, the better to talk to her. When he turned, his face showed deep concern.

"Listen, Bly," he spoke intently, low, "if Pop needs that"—he moistened his lips—"I mean, if it's that kind of help Pop wants, then let me use the gun! Me!"

"Oh, Duane! . . . No. No, it'll have to be his way, I'm afraid. Until—at least until we know more. I do know this much, he needs it for protection. And you must promise to say nothing. To go right out with the rest of the team and be yourself! Understand? . . . Practice hard and—and kid everybody and keep the spirit up. Don't let anything spoil the team's morale, even if Pop shouldn't be able to come!"

He looked at her a long moment, then resumed pedaling again. And Blythe knew he would question her no more. He had already said a great deal more than was his custom. But she couldn't end it quite so abruptly.

"Duane, it's kind of personal, I guess. But it concerns Pop and it concerns the team. And it concerns Nancy Hale."

She tacked that last hint on, purposely. Would he now show wild, desperate concern? For the other girl?

Bly waited. Duane kept on pedaling as if he had never heard at all. Finally he said, calmly, "I'll stick around. The commandant has already said I could take my duties easy this week. He meant leave of absence, if needed. I'll stick around, Bly."

That's all he ever said about it, and Blythe herself volunteered no more. As to his feelings concerning Nancy, she had learned exactly nothing.

When Nancy had telephoned, that note of urgency in her voice was definite. But Bly was almost afraid to face her again.

Afraid, this time, not because Nancy was making an admitted play for Duane Hogan's love, and had even asked Bly's help in winning him; but afraid because of what she had overheard on the stairs.

Nancy Hale had said "All right" when a gambler's agent had offered her $1000 to drug two football men! One of them—worse—was Duane. Not only would Nancy sacrifice team spirit, friendship, all the finer loyalties, but for money she would even sacrifice love itself! Blythe's first quick impulse to expose Nancy had been stifled when she remembered baby Scooter Hale. And, too, there's just naturally something despicable about a tattler. Run quick and get the police after the girl who had stolen her boy friend? No; Bly couldn't bring herself to that. Not yet.

They were nearing Pop's office when Nancy ran outside to meet them. Both Duane and Bly sensed her concern.

"Bly," she began at once. "Duane. Listen—the field hospital called. Heavy Underwood is hurt! There was a plane crackup at dawn. He and the instructor both hurt. And I—if Pop Miller is sick, I'm afraid it may—the team—!"

The import of this was obvious. Heavy Underwood was the real power of the Lincoln football line. The great charging center. The team's third man, following only Norman Dana and Duane.

Methodist Ladies Give Chili Supper

Members of the Methodist Ladies Aid Society are sponsoring a chili supper, Wednesday evening, Oct. 28th. Serving will begin at 5:30 in the church parlors. Hostesses are Mrs. John Jacobson, Mrs. Josie Viton and Mrs. Frank Holmquist.

Local Farmer Loses Out Buildings In Fire

The farm occupied by the McPherson family was taken by fire last week. The fire started in one of the barns full of hay and is believed to have started from combustion. All of the barns and out buildings, including all of the hay was burned.

Mc Pherson's have moved onto the Clark Williams farm for the winter.

When the fire broke out, there were 15 head of milk cows tied up in the barn but the children rushed in and got the live stock out. They did not lose any stock.

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. William Leinonen of Ishpeming and Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Ronson of Negaunee, visited at the Joel Orava home Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence McNally and Mrs. Joel Orava were Marquette caller Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Elwyn Hawley and boys, of Chatham, spent the week end at the home of Mr. Hawley's mother, Mrs. Josie Viton.

Mrs. Cauchon returned to her home here Sunday, after being a patient in Saint Mary's hospital at Marquette the past several days.

Mr. C. R. Little accompanied by his daughter and grandson, Mrs. Nestor Orava and son Jackie, were callers in Marquette, Friday.

Mr. James Dunn, of Marquette, was a business caller here Friday.

Mrs. Robert Richmond was a Marquette caller riday.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Mills and children Andrea and Allen, of Maplewood, Wisconsin, spent the weekend at the home of Mr. Mills' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Benson Mills.

Robert Richmond has accepted the janitors job at the Trenary High school. William Quarfoot, the former janitor resigned last week.

The Robert Richmond family have moved from their farm north of Trenary into the house formerly occupied by Lum Mills.

Mr. Clarence Reeves of Detroit is spending a few weeks here visiting friends. He is a former Trenary resident.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

SADIE HAWKINS

"And no two ways about that, either"

PROCLAMATION

Know all Dogpatch men what ain't married by these presents, and specially Li'l Abner Yokum:

Whereas there be inside our town limits a passel of gals what ain't married but craves something awful to be, and

Whereas these gals' pappies and mammies have been shouldering the burden of their board and keep for more years than is tolerable, and

Whereas there be in Dogpatch plenty of young men what could marry these gals but acts ornery and won't, and

Whereas we deems matrimony's joys and being sure of eating regular the birthright of our fair Dogpatch womanhood,

We hereby proclaims and decrees, by right of the power and majesty vested in us as Mayor of Dogpatch,

Friday Night, October 30

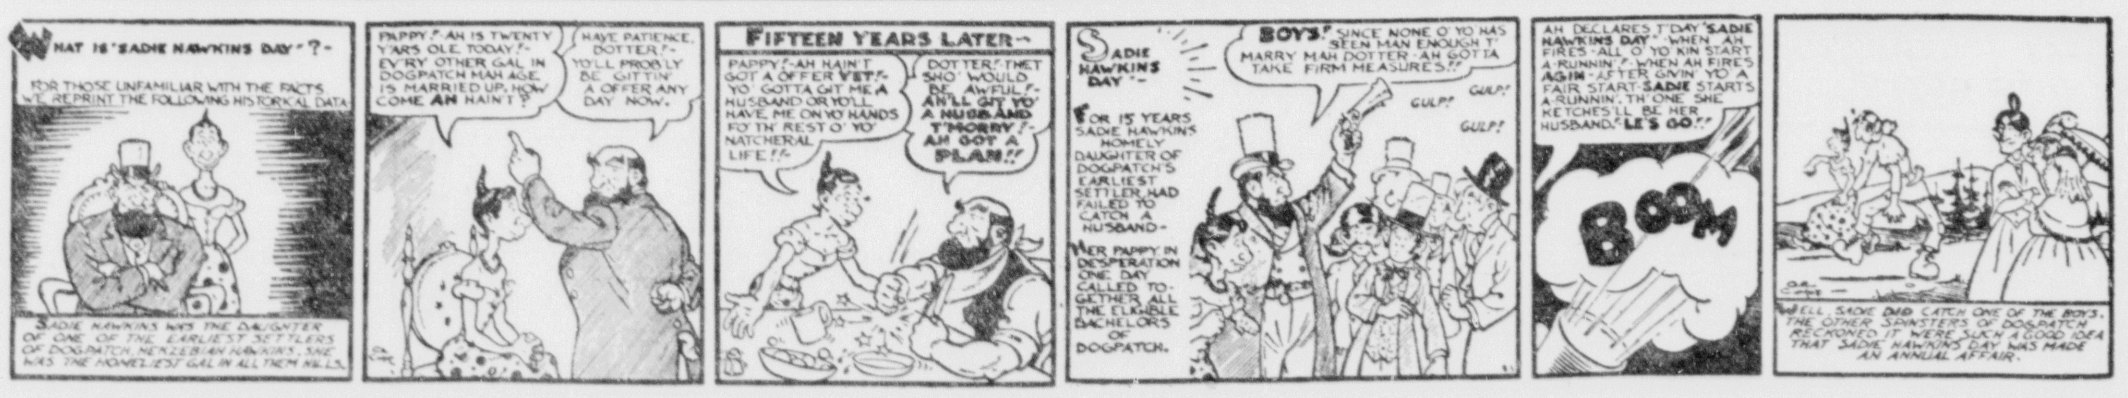
SADIE HAWKINS DAY

Whereon a foot-race will be held, the unmarried gals to chase the unmarried men and if they ketch them, the men by law must marry the gals and no two ways about it, and this decree is

By authority of the law and the statute laid down by our revered first Mayor of Dogpatch, Hekzebiah Hawkins, who had to make it to get his own daughter Sadie off his hands, she being the homeliest gal in all these hills and no two ways about that, either.

Given under our hand and seal, this, the seventeenth day of October, 1942, in the town of Dogpatch, in the State of Kentucky.

Prometheus J. Gurgle.
MAYOR OF DOGPATCH



WHAT IS "SADIE HAWKINS DAY"?-
FOR THOSE UNFAMILIAR WITH THE FACTS WE REPRINT THE FOLLOWING HISTORICAL DATA-

Shoplifter Is Bound Over To Circuit Court

Frank S. Demsky, a transient who gave his home as Juneau, Wis., was bound over to circuit court yesterday on the charge of shoplifting after his arraignment on the complaint of city police. Demsky is alleged to have stolen five paint brushes from the D. M. Creeger store here. He was arrested on Monday on the charge and brought into court yesterday.

Demsky demanded an examination on his arraignment before Judge W. G. Stephens in justice court and this was ordered held immediately. Four people testified for the people, D. M. Creeger, Laura Halsey, Phyllis Sawheittle and Marion Laux. Demsky testified for himself. After the hearing of testimony, Judge Stephens stated that the people had shown sufficient cause to order the Wisconsin man held on the circuit court charge. Bond was set at $500 and was not furnished. Demsky was returned to the county jail.

J. Joseph Herbert, county prosecuting attorney, represented the people in the case.

FIVE PLACED IN CLASS 1-A

Selective Service Board Gives Classification to Fifteen

Five Schoolcraft county men were given 1-A classifications by the local draft board this week. Two men were placed in 1-C and eight in 4-F. Maurice Conarty was also given orders to report for a physical examination.

Classifications were:

Class 1-A—Wallace Severs, Roy McQuiston, Edward Hytinen, Walter Supron, Harry Norbotten.

Class 1-C, enlisted — Vernon Snyder, John Finch.

Class 4-F, remediable — Glenn Houghton, Paul Anderson, Homer Joslin, Robert Graves, John LaMuth, Charles Dyer, James Scoon, Peter Lasich.

County Send-Off Group Chooses New Name Here

The Schoolcraft county Victory committee, that is the new name which has been adopted by the county send-off committee. The change was approved by members of the committee after submission and discussion of several different names. The new name will appear on the certificates which will be issued by the committee to the men in the service from the county.

The certificates, which will be given to all of the men in armed service, will be placed in the hands of a relative for safekeeping. If the serviceman has no one with whom the certificate can be left, the county clerk's office probably will be named as the depository.

Chet Tyrell was named vice-chairman of the Victory committee at the group's last meeting. Wilbur Fairchild is chairman of the organization.

Plans for the November activities for Schoolcraft county reservists are in the hands of a committee headed by William Stephens.

CONSERVE YOUR ELECTRICAL EQUIPMENT NOW!

America must dedicate its materials and its manpower to the conduct of battle, sometimes on distant shores. But a nation at war must do more; it must conserve its resources at home. Waste or loss that takes time and material to replace, necessarily impedes the war effort. Destruction through fire is particularly regrettable at this time.

Maintenance and repair of your electrical equipment is necessary if you are to make your electrical equipment last for the duration. Maintenance and repair also means that electrical safety will help keep the nation's loss of lives, equipment and materials through fire down as low as posible.

This is the introduction to a series of ads which we shall publish to give you tips on how you can make your electrical equipment serve you longer and better. Be sure to read them!

Ironwood Man, Lost, Finds Own Way Out Of Woods

Mike Switlick, of Ironwood, who told state police that he was past 66 and going on 72, turned up at Port Inland late Tuesday afternoon and reported that he had been lost for about 24 hours while attempting to reach the Frank Heinz lumber camp in that area. He was brought here to the county jail for food and lodging. Sergeant N. H. Modders, of the state police, said that Switlick would probably be taken back to Ironwood.

Volunteers For Plane Detection Corps Essential

Men are still being sought for volunteer work in the aircraft detection corps here. The unit so far has not started to function on a regular schedule but an arrangement has been made so that reports on aircraft here are sent to the army control center at Fort Brady. Men willing to volunteer several hours once every two weeks to participate in the program are urged to contact the volunteer civilian defense office in the chamber of commerce building. E. R. "Ted" Monroe is chief observer. Roy Anderson, Tom Grimsley and George Morton are assistant observers.

A directional orientation guide for the use of the aircraft observers was placed Monday at the chamber of commerce. The guide, constructed similar to a compass, was built under the direction of Stanley Carlyon by the manual arts department at the high school. It is to be used by the observers in determining the direction of flight of planes.

Luncheon To Be Served County Women Saturday

An invitation to Schoolcraft county women to be the guests of Governor Murray D. Van Wagoner and Senator Prentiss M. Brown at a luncheon here Saturday was issued yesterday. All ladies of the county are invited to attend. The luncheon will be held in the Zion Lutheran church beginning at 12:30. There will be no charge.

Arrangements are now being made to feature an out-of-town speaker on the luncheon program. The musical program will be in charge of Miss Margaret Johnson.

Reforestation Of City-Owned Areas Discussed

Reforestation of city areas with transplants from the Wyman forest nursery was left to the discretion of City Manager Frank W. Voisine Monday night at the meeting of the city council. Charles Manson appeared on behalf of a group of interested citizens and pointed out that transplants three and four years old were available at the nursery free of charge. Because of the shortage of labor a large number of trees cannot be set out as had been planned and the forest service is offering the small trees with the idea that they be put to some use, whether in beautification of public or private grounds or in some reforestation program.

Europeans have been coming to this land ever since 450 years ago in an uninterrupted pilgrimage seeking liberty and plainness; they have found them. This irrevocable destiny of America is the very soul of the common front we form today.

U. P. TO PLAN FOR POST-WAR

Series of Meetings To Be Held Week of Nov. 1

A series of three wartime and post-war development conferences are to be held in the Upper Peninsula on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, Nov. 4-6, according to a form letter sent out by George Bishop, secretary-manager of the Upper Peninsula Development Bureau.

The first of the three is to be held Nov. 4 at Newberry. The following day there will be another meeting at Escanaba and the following day at Iron River.

The conferences are the result of a request coming from the National Resources committee in Washington, D. C., to the Michigan State Planning commission and to the Michigan Lakes States Regional committee.

The Michigan Lakes States Regional committee has been asked to crystallize plans as related to the cutover area of Michigan that will fit into the post-war period—plans that will utilize relief labor—plans that will seek to establish a sound, economic base for our region—plans as relates to mining, agriculture, taxes, recreation, possible employment, relief, finance, forestry, industry, transportation, development and use of water power and economies in government, according to Bishop's letter.

Bishop declares that he believes the problem is being approached constructively in that efforts are being made to gain from leaders who are citizens of the cutover areas ideas that will help them to plan constructively and along practical lines.

Typist Exam Will Be Held Here Tonight

Persons desiring to take the examination may apply for application blanks up until 6 o'clock this evening at the post-office.

DEATH CLAIMS PETE PETERSON

Former Superintendent of Coal Dock Is Dead

Peter Peterson, 72, widely known retired superintendent of the Pittsburg Coal Co., passed away yesterday afternoon at the family home, 816 Dakota avenue, following an illness of some length. Complications attendant advanced age were given as the cause of death.

Peterson was born March 13, 1870 in Vastmanland, Sweden, and came to the United States and Masonville in 1888. The following year he moved to Gladstone where he has resided the past 53 years. Peterson served in a public capacity for many years and for 35 years was employed by the Pittsburg Coal Co., serving as dock superintendent until they ceased operations here in 1933.

Pete, as he was known to his many friends, held a number of public offices. He said his first public employment was to scrub out the city hall back in 1889. Later he was successively fireman at the pump house, night policeman, chief of police and for five years an alderman under the old form of government. When the charter form of government was adopted, Mr. Peterson ran for the city commission and was named to it in 1925, serving 9 years, the last of which he was mayor.

Surviving are the widow, the former Lena Peterson, five daughters and three sons, Mrs. Helmer Blomquist, city; Mrs. Walter Hillman, Chicago; Herbert Peterson of Valders, Wis.; Lillian Peterson at home; Mrs. Henry Blomquist of Gladstone; Gilbert Peterson of Flint; Elwood of Chicago, and Mrs. Theodore Johnson of Gladstone. There are also 15 grandchildren.

The body was removed to Swenson Brothers funeral parlors. No arrangements have been made for the funeral.

Bowling Meetings Tonight, Friday

Two meetings for the purpose of discussing the formation of local bowling leagues will be held at the Rialto alleys this week, it is announced by Walter VanDeWeghe, secretary-treasurer of the Men's league.

A meeting for the women will be held tonight at 7 o'clock at the alleys and every woman interested in bowling this season is invited to attend. The fact that the woman is inexperienced need not deter her from bowling, states Dolly LeClaire, president, for free instructions are to be given to those desiring.

The men's meeting will be held at the alleys on Friday evening at 8 o'clock and all men bowlers or men interested in bowling this season are invited to attend the session.

Leagues will not be formed at the sessions tonight and Friday but the machinery for the organization of local bowling for the winter months will be set into motion at the gatherings.

John Swan To Play For Hometown Party

John B. Swan, champion old-time fiddler and violin fancier, left yesterday for Jeddo and Roseburg, Mich., where he will play for a Hallowe'en party in a dance hall where he last played 46 years ago.

The party was arranged by Henry Wolfe of Jeddo who attended the roleo here last summer after reading of it the previous year in the Satevpost.

Swan and Wolfe spent their boyhood together in the lower peninsula and the last time they had met previous to the roleo was in 1896.

Swan expects to play a fiddle upon which he learned to play when about 12 years old. He then lived at Roseburg in Sanilac county. The violin is owned by a man by name of Jim Cunning who still resides on the same farm as he did a half century ago.

Lack Of Gopher Penalty Seen As Only Flaw In Dropkick Episode

GRIFFITH SIFTS DISPUTED PLAY

Illegal Punt Charge Is Ruled Out By Movie, Grid Czar Says

Chicago, Oct. 28 (AP)—John L. Griffith, commissioner of the Big Ten, today studied the dropkick episode in last Saturday's Minnesota-Michigan game and judged the only flaw in the controversial sequence of plays was Referee James Masker's failure to impose a five-yard penalty against the Gophers for substituting a player in an effort to gain an extra time out.

Following the substitution and with nine seconds left in the first half, Bill Garnaas of Minnesota kicked a field goal that eventually provided the margin of victory over Michigan, 16 to 14.

Despite the suggestion that Garnaas, who had never before attempted a dropkick, might have illegally punted the ball over the crossbar, Griffith said, motion pictures revealed clearly that the Minnesota player's kick was within the rules.

Only Seconds Left

The Gophers had used up their three legal times out when they sent in their substitute with enough seconds left for just one more play, Griffith said. Masker was busy setting up the ball after the previous scrimmage play but the head linesman sounded the horn as the substitute came on the field. The electric clock then stopped operating, although legally it should have remained in operation.

As soon as Masker noted it was not running, he signaled for the clock's hands to resume moving and the Gophers staged the play on which Garnaas kicked the field goal.

Had Masker stepped off the penalty against Minnesota, during which time the clock would have continued circling, the Gophers would have had considerably less time in which to execute their play, Griffith said, adding he had no way of knowing whether Minnesota still would have had time to kick its field goal.

"College games are never played over and scores are not reversed, no matter what may have happened, once the game is ended," Griffith said in releasing his review of the case. "However, there has been so much public interest manifested in this play that I present these conclusions."

WILLING TO FORGIVE

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 28 (AP)—Coach H. O. (Fritz) Crisler said tonight that the University of Michigan was willing to forgive and forget the circumstances under which Minnesota scored a field goal that gave the Gophers their 16 to 14 victory over his Wolverines Saturday.

Bill Garnaas' drop-kick, and the rulings of Referee James Masker, have been the subject of campus controversy all week, but Michigan coaches withheld comment until they had heard from John L. Griffith, Western Conference commissioner.

"In order that Michigan's position be not misunderstood," Crisler declared in a formal statement tonight, "I want to point out that Michigan coaches and players at no time questioned whether it was a drop-kick whether Minnesota had twelve men on the field, or whether there were seven men on the line of scrimmage."

(Each of the questions had been raised in campus gossip, which grew with the telling).

"The only question that Capt. George Celthaml raised," Crisler continued, "was in regard to a penalty which should have been assessed with the clock running and, since the kick was made in the last second, time would have expired before any play could have been executed.

"It was one of those unfortunate mistakes which was a bad break for Michigan, but any person is human and likely to make mistakes. We bear no ill will, and as far as we are concerned we would be glad to have the same official work any of our games."

Detroit Outfielder McCosky Is Shot In Face While Hunting

Detroit, Oct. 28. (AP) — Barney McCosky, slugging Detroit Tiger outfielder, visited Ford hospital tonight for treatment of superficial gunshot wounds suffered in a hunting mishap.

Five pellets from the shotgun of a hunting companion, Mark Flannery of Bad Axe, Mich., lodged in McCosky's face yesterday morning, the baseball player disclosed. Two of them struck just below his left eye.

McCosky said he was running after a pheasant when he saw Flannery take aim at the bird.

"I knew there was a good chance that I would be hit," he said, "and I tried to dive to the ground. I wasn't fast enough, however, for even as I took off I felt the sting of the pellets on my face.

"For a time I was afraid to open my eyes, for I thought I had been blinded and that my baseball career was over. But when I did finally open them, I found that they had not been damaged and I breathed a prayer of thanks."

A Bad Axe physician dressed McCosky's wounds and removed two of the pellets. The remainder are to be removed at Ford hospital tomorrow.

The Sports Parade

By Ken Gunderman

Earl Raiche, who rates as one of the peninsula's top notch bowlers, gave the crowd at the Arcade alleys a thrill Tuesday night with a 299 game in match play. Raiche and Walter Van de Weghe rolled off eight consecutive strikes each before Van de Weghe missed, and Raiche continued on for 11 in a row. On the last ball, with a perfect game riding on the throw, Raiche narrowly missed the pocket and the No. 8 pin remained standing. The crowd groaned. Raiche had one sloppy strike along the route.

The Marinette sports scribe is still sounding off about the officiating in the Escanaba-Marinette game. The ears of Messrs. Damschroder, Barry and Rich must be burning plenty. Perhaps the Marinette writer, who hasn't yet come out in the open to let us know who is the author of all of these vicious charges, doesn't know that a pass receiver loses his protection under the rules the instant he touches the ball on a pass. That's what was happening Saturday. The Eskymos smashed the receivers as soon as they made contact with the ball. For our money, Damschroder, Barry and Rich are OK.

Although football attendance has dropped off this year in most sections of the peninsula, including Escanaba, the feature games on the Menominee range are packing them in week after week. The Kingsford-Stambaugh game two weeks ago drew 2,500 and a crowd of 3,000 is expected Friday night for the Iron Mountain-Kingsford game. The answer, of course, is night football, which the Eskymos shun like the itch. Eventually, Escanaba, too, will come around to night football, despite all of the present day objections.

The football season now rapidly drawing to a close probably marks the end of high school football for the duration. Even the most optimistic sports fans concede that the obstacles confronting high school athletics in wartime are too great for a continuance of football. Basketball may continue on a somewhat restricted scale because the expense involved does not compare with the cost of maintaining and transporting a football squad. The Eskymos believe they can play all of their scheduled basketball games, using the available public transportation facilities. Games with Iron Mountain and Kingsford are the most difficult because public transportation facilities to this area from Escanaba are not convenient.

The use of home officials for athletic contests looms as a necessary evil in wartime. Officials obviously will not be permitted extra gasoline allowances to gallivant around the peninsula to work basketball or football games, and they certainly cannot do it on a basic allowance o ffour or five gallons a week. Few athletic officials like to work in their own town. For one thing, there is always the suspicion by visiting teams of unfairness. As a result home town officials ofttimes lean over backwards to the detriment of the home team. This brings down the wrath of the local fans, resulting in an embarrassing and uncomfortable position for the officials.

Class Of Boxing Heavyweights Is Just About Gone

BY WHITNEY MARTIN

New York, Oct. 28 (AP)— The heavyweight fist fighters are retiring in good order, and with a frequency that indicates that before long the class will disappear, if there was any left after Joe Louis announced his retirement. Any real class, that is.

Within the span of a few hours Bob Pastor and Red Burman announced they were through, and if wise-crackers say they have know that for years, at least Pastor and Burman were good enough to be listed in the division's top flight, and to fight the champion for the title.

The crop of heavyweights of the last five years was just unfortunate enough to come along when there was one man so outstanding that all others were dwarfed in comparison. It is not inconceivable that Pastor, or even Burman, might have been a champion had not Louis been around. It was just a case of poor timing.

Potential Champions

Neither Pastor nor Burman bobbed up much above the average in ring ability, but there were times in the careers of both when they had backing as potential champions.

Burman was Jack Dempsey's protege, with the ex-champion taking a keen interest in the redhead's progress until it was apparent that Burman was just treading water so far as going anywhere was concerned. He had his chance against Louis Jan. 31, 1941, and was in there catching for five rounds.

Pastor, managed by the astute Jimmy Johnston, had his chance twice and, echoing the clarion voice of his derbied pilot, was shouting for a third chance until it was apparent such a bout was out of the question, due to Louis' enlistment in the army and subsequent events.

Even then Johnston put in a title claim for him, a claim which was greeted with coarse laughter by the sports world, much to Johnston's secret amusement. He unquestionably knew that he might as well claim title to fresh air, but at least he kept Pastor's name in the papers.

Pastor, incidentally, is the second fighter Johnston has lost through retirement this year. He lost large Abe Simon shortly after Abe was obliterated by Louis for the second time last March 27. Simon, saying that a back injury prevented him from plying his trade, decided to quit, much to Johnston's secret chagrin.

Although Louis has pounded many an opponent into early retirement, it is improbable that he had anything to do with Pastor and Burman deciding to leave the ring. Both continued fighting for more than a year after meeting the champion. In fact, Pastor continued for more than five years after his first meeting with Louis, who had not yet won the title at that time.

Were Louis still fighting, he would have a pretty slim field from which to pick opponents, now that Pastor and Burman are out. Not that Louis ever picked his opponents. He fought whom he was told to fight, and asked no questions.

Only Billy Conn among his past opponents would make even a fair match, and Billy is out of circulation for the same reason Louis is. Look back over the list of his other opponents—Simon, Buddy Baer, Lou Nova, Tony Musto, Gus Dorazio, etc. There isn't a man among them who could draw his breath at the gate in another match. The fans came back twice to see Simon and Baer and Pastor against the champion, but in each case they were led to believe that, on previous showings, the repeaters had a chance.

COACH LEAHY BACK ON JOB

Boss of Irish Admits Feeling Shaky After 17 Days In Bed

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 28, (AP)—Frank Leahy, head football coach at Notre Dame, returned to the campus today after 17 days in bed at St. Mary's hospital, Rochester, Minn., where he underwent treatment for a back ailment.

Leahy was greeted by Ed McKeever, head backfield coach who directed the Notre Dame team in his chief's absence, and others of the coaching staff.

"I feel fine," Leahy said on his arrival. "I have no pain in my back after 17 days in bed." He admitted, however, that he felt "a little shaky."

He said, too, doctors had ordered him to return to the hospital at the slightest indication of the back pain.

Leahy paid high tribute to the squad for winning over the Iowa Sea Hawks and Illinois, both undefeated until they met the Irish. He also lauded the staff on its work.

Of McKeever's direction of the team, Leahy expressed the highest praise.

"A finer measure of success couldn't have happened to a grander guy," he said.

Leahy called a staff meeting immediately and reviewed the Sea Hawk and Illinois games. He also called a dummy scrimmage practice today.

He announced that 36 players would leave tonight for Cleveland where Notre Dame is scheduled to meet Navy Saturday.

Football Notes

Madison, Wis., Oct. 28, (AP)—Elroy Hirsch, Wisconsin's sophomore ball of fire, was in the infirmary this afternoon with a sore throat, and coaches held their thumbs as they said he would return to practice Thursday. The Badger's meet Ohio State here Saturday in the top Big Ten game.

Leonard (Bud) Seelinger filled in for Hirsch as the Badgers took their last hard scrimmage against Ohio State plays.

Coach Harry Stuhldreher scheduled a dress rehearsal to wind up the campaign tomorrow.

Columbus, O., Oct. 28, (AP)—Ohio State's Buckeyes sharpened their aerial game today in preparation for Saturday's football tilt with Wisconsin.

The unbeaten Bucks concentrated on plays designed especially for their clash with the undefeated Badgers, then drilled intensively on defense against the varied Wisconsin attack.

The Buckeyes work out here tomorrow before leaving for Madison, where they will drill Friday afternoon.

Minneapolis, Oct. 28, (AP)—With Bill Daley still on the sidelines, Herman Frickey took over at left halfback again today as the Minnesota team continued to polish its passing attack for Northwestern.

The Gophers, indicating they may be planning to combat Northwestern with its own weapon, drilled on both long and short passes with Frickey and Joe Silovich doing most of the tossing. Dick Luckemeyer also took his turn and rifled several left-handed passes to quarterback Bob Sandberg.

Bob Solheim replaced Don Nolander at center on the first eleven, while John Perko, Cliff Anderson and Bill Baumgartner still held their newly won first team spots.

Milwaukee, Oct. 28, (AP)—Marquette turned in the brightest offensive drill of the season today in what was probably their last contact work before meeting Detroit university here Sunday.

Watching the sharp passing, running, and blocking, Coach Tom Stidham worried a little about his Hilltoppers being drawn too fine, but concluded light drills would keep them at thei. peak.

Johnny Strzykalski's stand in at halfback, Rusty Johnson, was back on the field after causing a scare Tuesday by turning an ankle.

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 28, (AP)—With injuries likely to keep Ray Florek and Tony Butkovich, Illinois regular backs, sidelined at Michigan Saturday, Coach Ray Eliot combed the squad for reserves otday.

Myoron Pfeifer will take over Florek's position and Roy Hoppe, a converted lineman, was moved to second string quarterback. Don Peterson, a sophomore, was moved to second string fullback and will fill in for Capt. Jimmy Smith who alternated with Butkovich.

Great Lakes, Ill., Oct. 28, (AP)—Great Lakes devoted most of its practice today for the Missouri game to polishing its passing attack and running new plays. In a major line change, Coach Paul Hinkle moved Ray Busler, former Marquette and Chicago Cardinal tackle, to right guard.

Evanston, Ill., Oct. 28, (AP)—Northwestern held a long offensive drill today but Coach Lynn Waldorf's attempts to inject some scoring punch into his badly bruised Wildcats was handicapped by the absence of the entire starting backfield.

All four backs — Graham, Hirsch, Vodick and McNutt—are nursing minor injuries. They made their first appearance of the week on the practice field today but did not engage in contact work.

Northwestern, which faced Michigan and Ohio State in successive weeks, plays Minnesota Saturday.

According to records, more people take books from libraries on Mondays than on any other day of the week.

Sinkwich, Of Georgia, Leading Ground Gainer

Chicago, Oct. 28, (AP)—Frankie Sinkwich of Georgia has put two field lengths between himself and Columbia's Paul Governali in their feud for ranking as 1942's leading ground gainer. And Frank owes much of his success to a fellow who is the target for just a few of his passes, Lamar Davis.

The American football statistical bureau reported today that Sinkwich has gained 1,170 yards by passing and running in six games to take a commanding 200-yard margin over Governali, who has played in one less game.

And Davis, the Georgia sprint star who occasionally takes Sinkwich's passes, has gathered in 12 of them on plays covering 410 yards — almost an unparalleled mark.

Trailing Sinkwich and Governali were Missouri's Bob Steuber, 883 yards in six games; Arizona's Bob Ruman, 876 yards in five games, and Texas' Roy McKay, 823 yards in six games. McKay rose from 14th place when statistics from one unreported Texas game were received by the bureau.

Steuber's advance from fifth to third in total offense was made possible by 137 yards of ground gained against Ihio State, and this vaulted the Missouri boy into the lead in individual rushing with 635 yards. Rudolph (Little Doc) Mobley of Hardin-Simmons came up from sixth to second with a 604-yard net, Gene Fekete of Ohio State climbed from seventh to third with 550 yards, Ruman of Arizona dropped from second to fourth with 531 yards and Bob Margarita of Brown slid from the lead to fifth place with 529 yards.

Ray Evans of Kansas continued to hold the lead in pass completions with 59, good for 604 yards. Governali had 49 competions but made them good for 869 yards to lead all throwers in distance gained. Lee Daniels of Texas had 47 completions for 504 yards, Otto Graham of Northwestern 45 for 635 yards, and Sinkwich 42 for 726 yards. Gene Dobbs of Tulsa, 14th in completions, had the best percentage with 25 out of 36 going good.

McKay showed he can punt as well as run and pass for Texas as he took the lead in kicking with 21 boots averaging 46.38 yards. Cullen Rogers of Texas A and M stayed ahead in pass receiving with 24 catches, good for 271 yards, although his gains were far overshadowed by those of Sinkwich's mate, Davis.

SCHOOLS STUDY ATHLETIC CUTS

Gate Receipt Reductions To Affect State Association

Lansing, Oct. 28 (AP)—Methods of financing the State High School Athletic association when wartime curtailment of interscholastic athletic events reduces its income will be discussed by the executive committee of the association here Thursday.

Dr. Eugene B. Elliott, state superintendent of public instruction, pointed out that the organization derives its income from the share of gate receipts at athletic tournaments and from fees for the registration of officials, all of which are expected to decline.

"The association faces the problem of reduced revenues at a time when it is asked to become more active in promoting the entire physical education program," he said.

Members said restriction of interscholastic tournaments, mainly basketball, is expected to be severe as intramural sports are stressed, but they said the amount of curtailment to be necessary is not known.

Elliott said the directors would discuss appealing to the legislature to make up its loss of income, asking schools to contribute to its support, and having the so-called athletic benefit plan—insuring players against injury—carry a larger portion of administrative costs.

Trojans Will Play Menominee Saturday

The St. Joseph Trojans, still smarting from the sound drubbing they received at Gladstone last Saturday, will travel to Menominee next Saturday to meet the upbounding Marines.

Menominee upset the previously undefeated Munising team last Saturday and will rank as heavy favorites to take the Trojans.

FROSH GET ACTION

East Lansing, Oct. 28 (AP)—After a two-year lapse, Michigan State college will renew intercollegiate freshman football competition Saturday when the Spartan frosh tackle the Western Michigan State college freshmen at Macklin field. Freshman play was reestablished this year as part of State's intensified athletic program.

One beech tree grew directly through the heart of another nearby beech tree at St. Charles, Va.

Quick Kick Expert To Face Spartans

Philadelphia, Oct. 28 (AP)—Coach Ray Morrison has spent plenty of time teaching his quarterback Jimmy Woodside the art of quick kicking and he hopes it will pay dividends Saturday when the Temple Owls travel to East Lansing, Mich., for their annual game with Michigan State.

In Morrison's opinion Woodside is a natural when it comes to quick kicking as he gets his foot into the ball without bringing the pigskin more than a foot off the ground. Temple has stressed quick kicking rather than long punts in all drills this week.

CARDS NEXT ON PACKERS' SKED

Stolen Ball Trick In First Game Still Debatable

Green Bay, Wis.—The Chicago Cardinals will invade City stadium for a game with the Green Bay Packers Sunday, with the echoes of the two teams' last meeting stirring the interest in the final game on Green Bay turf.

With a greatly improved aggregation, Coach Jimmy Conzelman of the red-shirted Chicagoans saw his charges ahead late in the contest at Chicago when Charley Brock, steller Bay center, took the ball from the arms of a Card back and romped over for the winning touchdown. Conzelman has claimed, through the showing of movies, that the touchdown was illegal, while Referee Bobbie Cahn defended his decision allowing the score and the Packer camp supports his argument that the ball was never dead.

Ticket Sale Brisk

With that issue as a background, the Cardinals will play the return engagement here before a good-sized crowd intent on seeing just what Conzelman has been able to do this year to provide such a threat to the Packers' favored league position. The ticket sale has been brisk, although plenty of seats remain for the fans of Packerdom.

Both teams will be without the services of a star tackle. Chet Bulger of the Windy City squad suffered a back injury during his team's victory over Detroit that will keep him on the sidelines, while Ernie Pannell of the Bays has left for Navy service.

Schwenk Going Hot

Plenty of standout players remain, however, to make this engagement the usually colorful affair fans have found it to be. Wilson (Bud) Schwenk will provide the chief Cardinal threat in the air, with the veteran Marshall Goldberg and Steve Lach, among others, ready to help him, while the Lambeau cast will again star Cecil Isbell and his brilliant receiver, Don Hutson, with Tony Canadeo, Ted Fritsch, Chuck Sample, Lou Brock and others offering additional scoring punch.

The fans are assured of another wide-open, colorful game, with footballs filling the air. In losing to the Packers at Chicago, Conzelman's charges did what few other teams have ever done—they outgained the Bays in the air, and they'd like to repeat that feat with more emphasis on touchdowns.

ADMIRAL TAYLOR SPEAKS

Iron Mountain— "The bomber that is delayed now may never be finished; the keel that is not laid now may never be laid, and the 16-inch rifle which in the turret of a battleship might speak a message to the foes of democracy in the only language they understood, may never be bored. The time that we need to build these things is no longer inexhaustible or replaceable from the future, but instead is ticking away, now, this minute and every minute of today and tomorrow."

That was the message that Rear Admiral H. G. Taylor, superintending civil engineer for the Navy in Area 5, brought to Iron Mountain this morning in talks before workers of the Ford Motor, von Platen-Fox and Lake Shore Engineering companies, and a joint meeting of Kiwanis and Rotary at the Dickinson hotel.

MAY NOT BE DEAD

Iron River—Information received yesterday from Washington indicated that Pilot Officer Roy Wesley Hooper, of the Royal Air Force, reported killed in a flying accident a few days ago, may be alive.

Hopper, husband of the former Mary Zerbel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Zerbel, Iron River, was on coastal patrol duty of the Shetland Islands, where he returned to service following his marriage, in London on August 17, to Miss Zerbel, third officer in the British Air Transport auxiliary.

Last week Hooper's father, who resides in Alhambra, Calif., sent the following message to the Zerbels in Iron River: "Wesley killed in flying accident Saturday, Oct. 17. No details."

SNOW PLOWING CRITICIZED

Ironwood—Snow plowing and removal in the city took their usual prominent places in the discussion of the first city commission meeting held following the initial heavy fall of the winter season.

The city manager, William L. Johnson, was severely criticized by four of the five commissioners but there was a difference of opinion on Commissioner A. W. Bulinski's stand that the city "bit off too much when it accepted a contract to plow two miles of US-2 in the city limits."

SERVED ON WASP

Sault Ste. Marie—Although friends and relatives wondered and speculated upon the circumstances of his furlough here last week, Joseph Acri, 26, son of Mrs. P. Acri, 800 Portage, never let out a word about the sinking of the U. S. Aircraft Carrier Wasp aboard which he was first class seaman.

Young Acri, who enlisted on December 10, 1941, and was aboard the Wasp since assigned to ocean duty, came home last week to visit relatives. Relatives said today he remained completely silent on the sinking of the Wasp in the battle of the Solomons on September 15. The sinking was announced by the Navy last night. Acri was one of about 90 per cent of the Wasp personnel saved after the Wasp went under from three Japanese torpedoes which struck as the mighty Wasp was executing a turn.

Young Acri left Monday for Detroit to visit a brother, Victor Acri, at 8401 Corbendale, Detroit. He is expected to be assigned to another ship, possibly with a promotion. In the Sault he has a brother, Dewey Acri.

SHIPPING DELAYED

Sault Ste. Marie — Sleet and snow storms on the Great Lakes, especially Lake Superior, hindered normal ship travel. Travel has been slow at the locks within the past 48 hours because the boats have to anchor in the sleet.

Thus far no shipping accidents have occurred since the boats are taking every precaution, to get the ore through safely.

FARM HOME BURNS

Menominee — Another Gourley township family is homeless as a result of a disastrous weekend fire. The family is that of Gus Collard, whose home was destroyed last Saturday afternoon when high wind whipped up a blaze, caused by sparks from the chimney, igniting the roof shingles and levelling the house, woodshed and adjoining buildings before help could arrive.

Collard, who lived in the farm home with his wife and their granddaughter, Marie Walechka, is in his seventies and because of his age was unable to climb to the roof to extinguish the smoldering shingles. He sent his granddaughter to the nearest farm for help, but before it arrived the wind had started a blaze that soon got of control. The farm well was pumped dry and other water was too distant to reach in fighting the flames.

USING JAIL FOR SCRAP

Trout Creek—Shades of Boxcar Olle, Whiskey Johnnie, Cock-Eyed Ed and Charley the Bear!

These illustrious gents would turn over in their graves, no doubt, if they knew what was happening to the Trout Creek bastille, symbol of law and order in a community which once—well, had its share of lawless characters—but which now is a model of peace and propriety.

To put it bluntly, they're hacking down the old town jail and turning it in for scrap to slap a Jap.

Or, as Interior township board officers so aptly phrased it: "The only jail in Trout Creek has served well since 1874 in the enforcement of law and order through the pioneer days of the lumber industry and soon will be on its way to enforce law and order throughout the world."

At a meeting this week, the town board approved unanimously a motion by Justice Gingrich and seconded by Justice Dove that all available metal in the jail building be donated to the scrap metal drive, including door locks and hinges, steel doors and window bars through which Whiskey Johnnie and his buddies used to peer somewhat bleary-eyed after they had imbibed too much of the cup that cheers at brass-railed bars.

OIL TRUCK WRECKED

Menominee—Officers of the Marinette sheriff department and county traffic officers are seeking the identity and whereabouts of a woman who late Sunday night allegedly wrecked a Jack McCarthy Oil company truck on a side road off of highway US-41 just south of the city limits.

John Stoneburner, Route 1, city, driver of the tractor-trailer, early Monday morning reported the theft of the vehicle to Marinette police and John Wood, county traffic officer, who later found it in a ditch on a side road near the Chicago & North Western railroad tracks. It sustained damage to the left front tire, fender, and windshiled.

Stoneburner told officers he had picked up a woman hitch - hiker, who was wearing a khaki uniform, near Daggett, Mich., and brought her to Marinette. He said the woman took the tractor - trailer after he had parked it at the Ed. Johnson garage off of highway US-41. He said the vehicle was gone when he returned a few minuates later from his home across the highway.

Flight School Students Arrive Here On Saturday

The first contingent of students in the Civilian Pilots Training school to be established in Escanaba November 1 will arrive here Saturday evening, and six planes and their pilots will land at Escanaba municipal airport on Sunday.

Prof. C. B. Hedgcock, co-ordinator of the flight school, was in Escanaba yesterday in preparation for the opening of the Oliver home on Fifth avenue south, as temporary quarters for the students and instructors. The use of the Oliver house is for an indefinite time, and will be continued only until proposed barracks can be erected by the Civilian Aeronautics Authority at the airport.

Prof. Hedgcock pointed out that every effort is being made to eliminate a transportation problem, one of the reasons for the transfer of the school from Marquette to Escanaba. At Marquette it was necessary to transport the men nine miles from barracks to the Marquette county airport.

The time required for transportation to and from the flying field is important because of the heavy study load required of the students. A total of 30 hours of study per week is required, compared with the usual 15 hours in college. When flying weather is good the students will be in the air; when flying conditions are adverse they will study indoors. For this reason it is desirable to have barracks and class rooms as close to the field as possible.

40 Hours of Flying

The ground school consists of 240 hours of study in the following subjects: Mathematics, physics, regulations, navigation, general servicing of aircraft, code, military and physical training, aircraft identification, military science and discipline, and meteorology.

Besides the ground school there are 35 to 40 hours of flying. All of this training must be crammed into a period of eight weeks. There will be six eight-week courses per year, with 32 men assigned for each course. For 1943 a total of 192 men have been assigned for the training course here.

The men are from 18 to 35 years of age, and at the present session 10 are United States Navy aviator cadets, and 11 are Army pre-gliders. Since the Civilian Pilots Training school was opened late in 1939 a total of 113 students have been graduated, and of this total 85 are now in actual service in the Army or Navy. In the present session of the school there are 21 students, but this will be increased to 32 in the next session.

The course was started by the Civilian Aeronautics Authority and expenses are paid from CAA funds. The present contract for the school is in effect for one year. The school is conducted by the Northern Michigan College of Education at Marquette, in conjunction with Sigurd O. Wilson, flight instructor, and Prof. Hedgcock, co-ordinator.

Inspecting the Oliver house here yesterday, Prof. Hedgcock said first floor rooms in the house would be used for mess hall and study rooms. The second floor will provide sleeping quarters for the students. A cook will be employed, but the students while on fatigue duty will clean and keep the house in order.

Application has been made to the CAA for the construction of barracks at the airport. It has been proposed to move unoccupied CCC buildings to the airport to house the instructors and students, but where the buildings will come from has not yet been determined. Meanwhile the Oliver house is being made habitable, with some of the furnishings contributed through the Escanaba USO.

Senator Brown Accused Of "City Slicker Trick"

Washington, Oct. 28, (AP)—Frank Gannett, assistant chairman of the Republican national committee, charged tonight that Leon Henderson, James F. Byrnes and Senator Brown (D-Mich) had resorted to a "crass city slicker trick" which has cost the farmers millions of dollars.

In a statement issued through the committee, Gannett said the recently-enacted price-control bill had been flagrantly violated through "a connivance which approaches downright skulduggery."

In enacting the price-fixing law, Gannett asserted, congress made it clear that "all far mlabor costs" would be included in the estimation of parity prices and benefit payments to farmers were not to be included.

This arrangement, he said, was upset by the insertion by Senator Brown in the October 2 Congressional Record of a purported "summary" of the legislation stating that only "hired labor" was to be considered and price ceilings on farm products "were interpreted as being partiy less any subsidies paid."

Both interpretations, Gannett charged, "were distinctly and directly contrary to the intent of the congress" but upon them was based an executive order from the president "interpreting the price-fixing act not as congress had passed it but as Brown had interpreted it."

Gannett said Henderson, OPA administrator, and Byrnes, economic stabilization director, told the senate agriculture committee "they were interpreting the law in accordance with the summary put in the Record by Senator Brown."

"As if this were not bad enough," he continued, "it appears on reliable authority that Senator Brown never wrote this 'summary' himself; that it was, in fact, written in the office of price administration and written by Henderson's general counsel, C. David Ginsburg . . . the Brown summary was the sole peg on which the administration based its interpretation of the act, and with this smug and impious nod in the direction of the congress x x x it was definitely launched on a deliberate overthrow of the legislative act and the imposition of price-fixing by executive decree without challenge."

Gannett said "the most amazing angle of the entire situation" was "that a member of the senate x x x should have lent himself to a hood-winking, slicker scheme like that—to hoodwink the rest of congress and the farmers at the same time."

He was reliably advised, he added, that a demand may be made in the senate to withhold Brown's "alleged 'remarks' " from the permanent Congressional Record as a preliminary to congressional action forcing a different interpretation of the law.

"It is a situation which this exposure may nip in the bud," he concluded, "but it is one so fraught with danger that the earliest and most positive action is demanded as well as an accounting by those responsible."

C. E. RUDENBERG DIES AT WHEEL

Bay View Resident Stricken While Driving Car Toward Home

Stricken while driving toward his home at about 7:30 o'clock yesterday morning, Carl Edward Rudenberg, 51, of Bay View, died after halting his car on the south incline of the highway bridge at Wells.

His body was found there by Roger Hanley of Escanaba, who is employed in transporting mail from Escanaba to Gladstone. The ignition was off and Rudenberg's foot pressed heavily on the brake, holding the car on the bridge incline. Death was caused by a heart ailment.

The death was investigated by officers of the sheriff's department and Coroner Kevill Murphy. They reported that Rudenberg had complained of feeling ill after going to work at the Chicago & North Western tie plant yesterday morning, and had driven away in his car.

Mr. Rudenberg was born in Cottage Grove, Wis., on July 10, 1891. He had been a resident of Bay View for the past eighteen years, moving there from Ensign in 1924.

He was employed as a mill operator for the Chicago & North Western tie plant.

He was a veteran of World War I, serving for one year and four months and saw active service overseas with the 5th Division, Machine Gun Battalion.

He was a devout and active member of Bethany Lutheran church of this city.

Surviving are his wife, the former Millie Weberg, one daughter, Miss Dorothy Rudenberg, of Olivet, Mich.; his mother, Mrs. Annie Rudenberg, of Racine, Wis.; and three brothers and three sisters, Helmer and Victor, of Ensign; Oscar of Milwaukee; Mrs. J. O. Erickson, Mrs. George Faust and Mrs. Kenneth Gerdee, of Racine, Wis.

The body was taken to the Anderson Funeral Home to be prepared for burial and will be removed to the family home at Bay View at four o'clock this afternoon. Services will be held Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home and at 2:30 o'clock at Bethany Lutheran church, Dr. C. Albert Lund officiating, and burial will be in the family lot in Gardens of Rest cemetery.

FACTS ABOUT

Proposal No. 2

Home Rule and Clean Government for Wayne County

Proposal No. 2 . . . the Wayne County Home Rule Amendment on the Nov. 3 ballot . . . applies to Wayne County only. It does not affect the government of any other county.

Proposal No. 2 is not connected in any way with legislative reapportionment.

Proposal No. 2 has nothing to do with the calling of a Constitutional convention or any other proposal.

Proposal No. 2 is purely an enabling act permitting the people of Wayne County, with your help, to clean up their government.

Will you give us a lift, neighbor?

QUESTION AND AN ANSWER

Q: If Proposal No. 2 applies to Wayne County alone, why is it necessary for citizens of other counties to vote upon it?

A: Because it is a proposed amendment to the State Constitution, which calls for a state-wide vote, even though the proposal affects Wayne County alone.

REDS REPORT GROUND LOST IN STALINGRAD

tanks were destroyed by Soviet planes.

Nalchik is situated on a small plateau at the foot of the main Caucasian ridge and is known primarily as a health resort. It has a population of 13,000.

The German advances inside Stalingrad, achieved by incessant assault at the cost of severe losses cramped still further the Russian defense on the high west bank of the Volga. But, the Russians said, the Germans did not make a major break through.

(The German high command's communique announced that German troops in Stalingrad "thrust on east of a factory as far as the river Volga," occupying several fortified blocks of houses. East of Tuapse, the Germans claimed they occupied a fortified mountain position and repulsed enemy counter-attacks. Southeast of Novorossisk, above Tuapse, the communique said that German troops "successfully stormed a mountain range dominating the whole district.")

Battleground Soggy

Northwest of Stalingrad, on a battleground oozing from heavy rains, the Red army relief forces were reported to have driven the Germans back, step by step, in a number of sectors.

The Germans were reported routed from "a basic point" three days ago by heavy artillery and mortar fire and a following infantry charge. Two-day counter-attacks then were said to have been repulsed by the Russians, with 7,000 German dead and 100 enemy field guns, 57 tanks and 70 machineguns smashed. One hundred and fifty damaged German tanks were reported captured and 26 German planes shot down.

In some quarters the turn in the Caucasus fighting northeast of Tuapse, where the Germans have been trying to get astride the high coastal road, was regarded as the most important development in today's military dispatches.

Under the methods of tree-farming recommended by the American forest products industries, the country's farm wood lots would bring to farm families an additional income of approximately a half billion dollars a year, the equivalent of a new major crop.
